Shiloh Baby Drowned In Water Bucket

TUMBLE INTO 2 INCHES OF WATER FATAL

Child, Year Old Today, Dies at Home of Parents, Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Wells.

MOTHER FINDS BODY

Discovers Tragedy In Chicken Coop After Missing Girl; Tries to Revive Her.

Falling head first into a gallon bucket containing only two inches of water, Carolyn Sue Wells, one-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Wells of near Shiloh, drowned about 5:30 p. m. yesterday at her parent's home.

The child's mother said the little girl, who would have been a year old today, was playing in the yard and apparently wandered into the poultry house where she fell into the bucket. The mother went to look for the child when she disappeared from the yard and found the limp body in the poultry house.

Dr. R. E. Wharton, acting county coroner, said the little girl probably was peering into the water bucket, out of childish curiosity. She then lost her balance and toppled in. He said her face had been in the water only a few minutes when her mother found her.

Believing there was still a chance to revive the little girl, Mrs. Wells carried the body to the home of Mr. and Mrs. Ohio Wells, the baby's grandparents, nearby. Attempts at resuscitation were unsuccessful.

A wood frame work which held the water bucket upright may have been responsible for the baby's death, officers said, since the bucket otherwise probably would have upset.

The Wells live on a farm a short distance east of Shiloh toward Rome.

Funeral services for the baby will be held at 2 p. m. Friday in the First Christian church, Shenandoah. Rev. Turner Holt, pastor of the church, will officiate. Burial will be in the Shenandoah cemetery.

Surviving, besides the parents and grandparents, are a brother, Lionell, five years old, and an aunt, Mrs. Madge Gerrell, Mansfield.

IT'LL STAY COOL

Weatherman Says Heat Gone For at Lease Over Holiday.

Long-promised relief from the season's worst heat wave reached Mansfield and the rest of Ohio last night when the temperature dropped 30 degrees in a few hours.

Cool, cloudy weather was forecast for the northcentral Ohio area for the Fourth of July holiday as a mass of cool air from Canada settles over the entire middle west and east to rout the heat which has claimed seven lives in Ohio.

Blown into Mansfield early last night by a north wind, the cool weather brought a drop in the temperature from 88 to 58 degrees. The average of 73 was only three degrees above normal.

Overcast skies today held the reading down to a comfortable 74. The weatherman said there may be scattered showers tonight and Friday, but they are not expected to be heavy enough to spoil holiday activities.

Girl Pleads Innocent In Hit-Skip Death At Ironton.

IRONTON —(AP)— Seventeen-year-old Helen Peters, charged with being the hit-skip driver who killed John Barr June 13, pleaded innocent to charges of manslaughter and leaving the scene of an accident.

She waived a hearing before Mayor Paul Porter of nearby Coal Grove and was bound over to the probate court.

Shown at the left in the above picture is one-year-old Carolyn Sue Wells who fell into a bucket and drowned in two inches of water late Wednesday at her parents' farm home near Shiloh. The bucket of water was in the poultry house. The little girl's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Wells. With her in the picture is her brother, Lionell, 5.

SLASH BUDGET BILL $45,000

Council's Finance Committee Takes Out Funds For Fire, Police Pay Increases.

The finance committee of city council lopped off $45,000 from Mansfield's tentative budget for 1942 last night at a special meeting at city hall.

Fred Miller, committee chairman, said that the proposed budget of $413,795 had been cut to $368,183 and would be submitted to council at a public hearing Monday, July 14.

Hardest hit by the committee's slash were the police and fire departments, funds of each being reduced approximately $10,000. The budget requested from the parks department was lowered about $8,000.

If approved by council, the 1942 budget as it now stands, would provide for the expenditure of $368,183. This would be $25,663 more than the appropriation for this year which was $342,520.

The tentative budget would give the police department an appropriation of $61,550, slightly higher than the $61,032 appropriated for this year. The fire department would also receive a slight increase if the budget is approved. Its appropriation of $68,295 for operation this year would be raised to approximately $70,000 for 1942.

Anticipated increases of salary for police and firemen were erased with the removal of requests for larger payrolls. The police request of $71,550 was whittled down to $61,550. Miller said that

CLAIM RUSSIAN RESISTANCE IN TOTAL CHAOS

Germans Assert Whole Line Smashed But Moscow Says Thrust Halted.

NEW BATTLE REPORTED

Nazis Declare United Armies From Arctic to Black Sea Begin to Attack.

(By Associated Press)

Adolf Hitler's high command declared today that the resistance of the Red army appeared smashed along the entire 2,000-mile front from the Arctic to the Black sea and that "unimaginable chaos" had broken over the Soviet armies.

While the Nazi high command pictured a decisive turn in the 12-day-old struggle, a Soviet communique asserted that the main German thrust toward Moscow had been blocked and that Russian troops were locked with the Germans in a vast new battle on the road to the Soviet capital.

"United armies on the entire front between the Black sea and the arctic have started to attack," the German high command said, announcing that Nazi and Rumanian troops crossed the Prut river toward the Denstr yesterday.

"It now appears that resistance of the Soviet army is broken. Backward movements of the enemy have become apparent on the entire front."

The Prut river forms a boundary between Rumania and Russian-held Bessarabia.

Amid these assertions by Hitler's headquarters, the Russian high command declared that the vanguard of the Moscow-bound Nazi invasion forces had been hurled back in repeated attempts to cross the Berezina river, whose waters were reddened by the blood of Napoleon's troops in the bitter retreat from Moscow in 1812.

The Red army also was reported to have halted and inflicted "a heavy defeat" on a German mechanized column driving toward Shepetovka, 20

SEIZURE SEEN

Government Ready to Act Unless Firm Deals With Union.

WASHINGTON —(U.P.)— Defense officials today predicted prompt government seizure and operation of the Western Cartridge company plant at Alton, Ill., if the company persists in its refusal to deal with the American Federation of Labor union.

The defense mediation board has given the company until 5 p. m., EST to accept its recommendation that the AFL's chemical workers union be recognized as bargaining agent for the 550 workers in the plant's smokeless powder division. The national labor relations board previously had certified this union as bargaining agent.

The workers have threatened a strike Sunday unless recognition is granted.

Ohioans Are Kept 'In Dark' Over Reasons for Blackouts

(By Associated Press)

CLEVELAND—In the absence of official enlightenment, residents of a small section on the eastern edge of metropolitan Cleveland were still figuratively in the dark today over their two short voluntary blackout periods.

The army and the General Electric company, mentioned in a circular to the residents, kept silent on the nature of the experiment.

For the last two nights, citizens in an area two miles square around route 422, including parts of the villages of Pepper Pike, Moreland Hills and Chagrin Falls, kept all lights from showing between 11 p. m. and 2 a. m.

Tuesday they received circulars from H. A. Leisenheimer, mayor of Moreland Hills, saying General Electric would sponsor an experiment Tuesday night "with the United States army air division."

"There will be signaling devices tried out with planes at a great height. The circular called for a "complete blackout," with "not even a cigaret glare" showing.

Yesterday another circular from the mayor heralded last night's test. As before, route 422 was blocked off, there were planes overhead—some said it sounded like five or six cruising around—electrical engineers and army trucks were seen.

The second circular said "Capt. W. S. Everett advises we had as nearly a perfect blackout as was possible, and the best co-operation of any experiment in which he had taken part."

Caution Urged as Death Starts Its Holiday Ride

Mansfield Area Starts Long Week-End With Two Mishaps; 25 to 35 Will Be Killed Before Monday.

With the National Safety council predicting the death of between 25 and 35 Ohioans in auto accidents over the Fourth of July week-end, caution was urged upon Mansfield motorists today by the council and the state highway patrol.

Two accidents already marred the accident record of the Mansfield area today with six persons being injured as motorists took the road for holiday trips.

Aside from traffic accidents, another 35 to 45 persons are scheduled to die from drowning, firecrackers and other preventable causes, according to the safety council's estimates.

Chief danger to Mansfielders, according to police and the Richland county chapter of the Red Cross, will come from auto accidents.

Six Youngstown residents were injured, one seriously, this morning when their auto crashed into a bridge abutment 22 miles east of Mansfield on U. S. route 30.

Joe DeFiore, 19, driver told state highway patrolmen that an unidentified driver forced him in-

SPENDS NIGHT IN BANK VAULT

Other Employes Pass Food To Imprisoned Teller.

FINDLAY—(U.P.)—Miss Fay McLean, teller at the First National bank, could tell friends how it feels to be imprisoned over night in a bank vault.

She became locked in the vault accidentally Tuesday afternoon at the close of business. The time lock was set and she couldn't get out until yesterday morning. Bank employes passed food into the ventilated vault through a tube.

Miss McLean said she suffered no ill effect after her 15-hour stay in the vault.

Famed Producer Succumbs In New York; Rites Sunday.

NEW YORK —(AP)— Weakened by a appendectomy last March, Sam H. Harris, 69, one of the most successful theatrical managers and producers since the turn of the century, died in his apartment at 5:45 a. m., (EST) today.

Producer of such hits as "Dinner at Eight," "As Thousands Cheer," "I'd Rather Be Right," and a score of others, many of which were made into movies, Harris has visited his office only infrequently since the operation.

His condition became critical yesterday after pneumonia set in. At his bedside when he died were his third wife, Mrs. Kathleen Harris, and Mrs. Wallace Giblin, the former film actress Constance Talmadge. Funeral services will be held Sunday.

U. S. Ok's City Airport for Military Flight Training

Federal approval of Mansfield's municipal airport as a training center for military flight instructors and commercial transport fliers was announced today by James R. Harrington, airport manager.

Harrington said that he had received a telegram from Washington informing him that a class of twelve advanced civilian pilots will arrive here on Monday, July 14, to start training. Three courses of 17 weeks each are called for in the contract, according to Harrington.

The airport manager said that he was contacting city officials and NYA authorities for aid in getting the airport converted into a training base in time for the opening of the course.

Mayor William J. Locke said that Harrington had requested the city to aid in improving the runways of the port and that the finance committee of council was considering the expenditure of between $300 and $500 for that purpose.

Harrington announced that he believed he would be unable to obtain NYA aid in constructing barracks to house the trainees. He said that he planned to construct a pre-fabricated house for the students until regular barracks can be built.

Marshall Calls For 2,500,000 Standing Army

Says Removal of Restrictions Needed After 'Recent Events,' Repeats Request for Removal of Unsuitable Officers.

(By International News Service)

WASHINGTON—Gen. George C. Marshall, U. S. army chief of staff, today called for removal of legal restrictions to permit the army to serve anywhere in the world, and, at the same time, asked authority for an army of nearly 2,500,000 men.

Marshall urged the big standing army when he also asked for authority to keep "draftees," the national guard and reserve corps officers in service beyond the one year period stipulated in the conscription law.

The army, including selectees, guardsmen and reserves, is now composed of about 1,400,000 men. If granted authority to keep the trainees in service beyond a year, the force would be built up to nearly 2,500,000 since 900,000 conscripts are to be called up in the next 12 months.

Later, at a press conference Secretary of War Stimson approved Marshall's proposal to keep conscripts in the army for more than one year. He pointed out that he had already made recommendations to congress calling for such a step.

Stimson, however, declined to comment on Marshall's recommendation that legal restrictions be removed against the use of United States troops outside the western hemisphere.

"That will have to depend on how the president decides," the secretary said.

However, it is recalled, that last week Stimson wrote a letter to congressional leaders recommending legislation to permit the sending of American troops anywhere in the world.

Marshall, in asking for removal of the restrictions which now prevent the army from moving out of the western hemisphere, declared that such a step was necessary in light of the events of the last few days, presumably the German invasion of Russia.

The chief of staff said that the army should be a mobile force ready to strike any place at a moment's notice, and warned that delay caused by debate in congress during a future emergency might give away U. S. plans to defend the hemisphere.

In a report to Secretary of War Stimson, Marshall declared "there are legal restrictions on the use of the armed forces which should be removed without delay. . . . When and where these forces are

U. S. ENDORSES URUGUAY PLAN

Favors Proposal For Western Republics To Cooperate In Event of War.

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON — The United States, holding that "the safety of the Americas hangs in the balance today," wholeheartedly endorsed the proposal of Uruguay that the 21 American republics exchange specific pledges of "constructive and practical co-operation" for defense.

The endorsement carried an appeal to the other republics to subscribe to the proposal because the western hemisphere was facing a threat of "aggression without comparison in history."

Under the Uruguayan proposal submitted to all hemisphere republics by Foreign Minister Guani on June 21, the nation's would pledge themselves not to "treat as a belligerent any American country which, in defense of its own rights, should find itself in a state of war with nations of other continents."

PILOT MISSING

Fear Loss of American Flier During RAF Raid.

LONDON —(INS)— First American flier of the Royal Air Force's Eagle squadron to be shot down, Pilot-Officer William Isaac Hall is missing and feared lost following a sweep of German-occupied France yesterday.

The RAF shot down 17 German planes in combat during the raid, and planes of the Eagle squadron were officially credited with three of them.

Hall, American-born, listed his next kin as Mrs. M. C. Hall, 306 Carlton Apartments, Saskatchewan.

Three other members of the Eagle squadron have been killed in service, but Hall was the first to be shot down in actual combat.

18 Off for Camp Today, State Acts On 3 Deferments

Temporary deferment of three men past 28 years old who were scheduled to leave Mansfield this morning for the Fort Hayes induction station reduced the county's contingent from 22 to 19.

There was not enough time to find replacements for the men who were deferred at the last minute under an order issued by state draft headquarters, board clerks said.

Board 3 deferred two men, leaving only six to go to camp from the board's district this morning. Dropped from the group because of their age were John Myers, Bellville, R. D. 2, and James Andrew Bright, Lucas.

While Board 2 representatives declined to comment on the board's action of deferments, Clerk Bryan Styert said Henry E. Cunning, one of the six scheduled to leave today, failed to report this morning. Cunning is past 28. Board 1 replaced one man who was withdrawn with a volunteer.

It is expected that replacements will be chosen later for the three men who remained at home today. Another small group of selectees is due to leave July 11 for camp.

With only 264 of Ohio's 330 selective service boards reporting, 32,681 youths just past 21 registered Tuesday, state draft headquarters said today. The total is expected to reach 39,000. Richland county's three boards registered 483 men.

BROADWAY

You Meet Interesting People.

(And It's the Little Things That Fascinate You.)

CELEBRITIES have ways of relaxing almost as many and varied as the shades of hair in a Broadway chorus lineup. Sam Harris goes to Central park, George M. Cohan feeds the pigeons in front of the Metropolitan Museum, Tallulah Bankhead visits the zoo at night (which may explain why people give her marmosets and lion cubs!)

Dorothy Kilgallen

John Steinbeck does half a day's work, like cutting down timber; Gertie Lawrence knits, and Victor Mature rides in a horse and buggy.

Joan Crawford takes her shoes off, nibbles on little hard cookies, and has her hair washed. She has her hair washed oftener than any girl I know.

Sometimes it's quite a letdown when you see a Hollywood hero in person, but if anyone tells you she was disappointed in Cesar Romero in the flesh, mow her down with a cutting look. Celluloid libels him.

Jack Dempsey has two weaknesses: he's a soft touch for a "touch" from any down and outer in the boxing racket, and he's a pushover for his two little daughters, who rule him with an iron hand.

Prince Bishnu of Nepal is the best audience in town for glamor girls, because he always listens very attentively, and rarely says anything himself.

Funnyman Fred Allen is probably the last of the tobacco-nibbling contingent in show business.

Because Joe DiMaggio operates a restaurant on the coast during his winter layoff, he's a "restaurant snooper" when he's travelling with a ball club. In every town, he heads for the best Italian restaurant, to see if he can pick up any pointers for his own place.

When you play ping pong with Eddie Cantor his pop-eyes seem to come back at you at the same time the ball does, and you don't know which of the three to try to return.

Mrs. Jimmy Cagney still brings James a home-cooked lunch when he's "on location" close enough to their home.

Champ Joe Louis is so interested in golf that he's all but lost interest in boxing. He told Mike Jacobs, "Don't book me any fights in August, I've got to play in that tournament."

Mae West, who raves about California sunshine, never gets any of it. She lives in an apartment and rides around in a bullet-proof, non-ventilated limousine.

Ethel Waters, at rehearsals, is more temperamental than Ethel Barrymore ever thought of being . . . Walter Wanger has a way of talking like a lawyer pleading a case. . . . Belle Baker still talks about her son, and brags about his bright saying, as if he were an infant.

Grace and Paul Hartman, the dance satirists, don't drink liquor, but they're fiends for a fancy sundae. They have their own soda fountain at home, and they've been known to make a quart of chocolate syrup disappear in one afternoon.

Among the top 10 rabid Dodgers fans must be listed Harry James, the Hotel Lincoln bandleader, who has paid tribute to his favorite nine by writing three songs in honor of Ebbets Field—"Flatbush Flanagan," "The Dodgers Fan Dance" and "Take Me Out to the Dodgers, Rodgers."

When his team loses a game, James arrives on the bandstand with a face longer than Oscar Levant's hair; on days when the Dodgers win, he leads his men like an inspired Toscanini.

Arlene Whelan likes gardenias, and sometimes wears six at a time, slung in a row from shoulder to hip. . . . Mayor LaGuardia always makes a trick face when a camera's around. He must have a subconscious notion that it's against the law to look pretty in a picture.

William Saroyan has casual romances with girls you hear about via the Broadway columns, but his real love is a little Armenian girl in San Francisco, "who has teeth spaced wide apart and just sits and smiles and never says anything."

When anybody approaches Alfred E. Smith with a "terrific idea," the former governor is inclined to say: "Stop now if you're going to tell me we should convert the upper stories into a hotel."

HOLLYWOOD

—By Robbin Coons

HOLLYWOOD—It's none of my business (I being a stranger here myself) but it seems to me that some of the theme songs of the recent movie exhibitors' convention had comedy lyrics.

Frequently voiced was the plaint that writers of my ilk, commenting on movies in advance of their release, were a pain in the neck to the exhibiting gentry who would rather, if I infer correctly, let an unprejudiced audience judge each movie for itself—after paying on the line for the privilege.

Often the wail was that no other industry "press-previews" its products. Motor cars, for one example, have no ungracious carps to tell prospective buyers that the new models are fine except for say, leaky carburetors and weak differentials.

True enough. But the auto-buyer can see the model and ride in it before he buys. I've yet to see a movie house with the box office at the exit.

And then an auto model stays around a while, usually a year. It had better be good or it'll stay longer—on the floor. A movie is a will-o'-the wisp, here today and gone tomorrow or next week. Usually without even fumigating the house, the exhibitor peddles its successor on the screen. The new one may be caviar or spinach, champagne or beer. Does he just want to sell tickets? (After all, he's only human, so what do you think?)

All the tooth-gnashing seems even sillier after the many years all of us have understood that "previews" neither helped nor hurt a movie. I still believe this to be true.

A movie's "opening day" receipts may be better if the public has no inkling, but if the movie smells, the odor will be all over town by nightfall. Reliable old Word-of-Mouth is a sleepless smeller-outer. Besides all which, the first day's customers, stung are likely to resent it. They may even remember it for weeks and months, and stay home pouting those nights or weeks when the exhibitor really has something to offer. This would make the exhibitor sore, too, and what an unhappy world we'd live in!

COMPLETE PLAN ON PREPAYMENT OF INCOME TAX

Treasury Setup To Include Sale of Securities To 'Ease Burden.'

(By United Press)

WASHINGTON—The treasury department has completed a plan for pre-collection of 1942 income taxes through the sale of tax anticipation securities, it was learned today.

Secretary of the Treasury Henry Morgenthau is expected to reveal the plan's details shortly.

The plan, developed in connection with the record $3,504,400,000 (B) tax bill approved by the house ways and means committee yesterday, has two principal objectives:

1. Ease the taxpayer's burden by permitting him to anticipate his tax bill with systematic savings over a period of months.

2. Bring the 1942 tax revenue into the treasury prior to the regular collection date.

Under the plan, the treasury is expected to offer new securities maturing on the 15th of March, June, September and December, the quarterly income tax installment dates. Purchasers will receive a return on their investment equivalent to less than one per cent annual interest.

Officials said that the rate of return on the new securities must necessarily be low in order to avoid diversion of public investment from other securities, such as the defense savings bonds which return at maturity more than two per cent on the original investment.

The securities will start at a low denomination, such as $25.

They will not be transferable. A taxpayer may cash in his security prior to its maturity without loss on its face value, but he will lose the small rate of return.

Meanwhile, the house ways and means committee gave the legislative drafting service the task of preparing a bill embodying its proposals for changes in individual and corporation taxes and excise levies.

Chairman Robert Doughton, (D., N. C.), scheduled a committee meeting July 14 to give the measure final approval. The house is expected to consider the bill soon thereafter.

BODY FOUND

Remains of 12th Victim of Boat Disaster Recovered.

HARPSWELL, Me.—(AP)—Casco Bay today gave up the 12th body from the cabin cruiser 'Don' disaster, in which 35 excursionists apparently died. The body was not immediately identified.

Hope that at least one of the party might have survived faded when State Lieutenant John E. Marks branded as a hoax a note found in a preserve jar.

A searcher for bodies still missing said he found the note off Bailey Island. Scribbled on wrapping paper, it read: "Am on island. Hurt. Jack."

One of those aboard the Don when the craft set out from Dyer's Cove last Sunday on a 40-mile trip to Monhegan Island was Jack Kersey, 42, of Rumford.

HIGHLY PLEASED BY BIG BOMBER

Pilot Says 41-Ton Craft Could Land on Almost Any Airport In Nation.

(By Associated Press)

RIVERSIDE, Calif. — Highly pleased with a second test flight in the giant B-19 bomber, Maj. Stanley M. Umstead said today he is confident the new 41-ton flying laboratory could take off and land at almost any airport in the country.

Umstead, chief army test pilot, wheeled the huge $3,500,000 craft through southern California skies for 90 minutes yesterday at altitudes ranging up to 10,000 feet. A thousand spectators watched the takeoff from nearby March field.

Afterward, Umstead described the bomber's flight as "a perfect performance." It took off after only a 17-second run and, upon landing, stopped within 1,500 feet.

During the ship's second hop, Umstead carried out tests he did not attempt when he flew it to March field from its factory field at Santa Monica, 75 miles away, last Friday.

Several times he fully extended and then retracted into the belly of the plane the heavy eight-foot wheels and the remainder of its massive landing gear. He said they worked fine.

Umstead also was pleased with new adjustments to the controls. Mechanics had removed some of the super-sensitiveness of the plane which, on its maiden flight, caused the pilot to over-control. This produced a slight wobbling at intervals in the wings.

The bomber is scheduled to remain here for additional tests for about 60 days. The next tentatively is set for Tuesday. Later, it is to be flown to Wright field, Dayton, where it formally is to be taken over by the army if all tests are satisfactory.

"Night In Bombay," is already in production at the M-G-M studios while "Wild Is the River," is slated for early production by Columbia. The latter production will be released within two months after the book published by Harper and Brothers, Nov. 20.

First published in serial form, "Wild Is the River," a story of New Orleans at the time of the Civil war, was introduced in the July issue of Cosmopolitan magazine.

Motion picture production of the picture sets a precedent as far as the release date of a picture will be almost simultaneously with publication of the book.

Bromfield's trip to the west coast Saturday is occassioned by his adaptation of Ernest Hemingway's story "For Whom the Bell Tolls," which is being produced by Paramount. Mansfield motorists may soon see parking meters facing them at a 45 degree angle rather than at right angle to the street as they are now stationed. Councilman Russell D. Porch at council meeting Tuesday suggested that the meters be turned slightly so that police could check meter violations more efficiently from motorcycles and police cruisers. Police Chief Meade K. Bates said that the matter would be investigated.

Kathleen Gehl, employed in the Boy Scout office, is faced with what seems to be a knotty problem. Floyd Dent, Scout executive, brought a stuffed ant eater which was given him into the office and left it directly opposite her desk. She refuses to touch the animal and yet she hates to see it. An ant eater makes his living by plowing into ant hills and catching ants in his shell. Then he moves to water, drowns the insects and then feasts on them. The more Miss Gehl thinks of this profession the worse she feels.

HOLDUP SLAYING SOLUTION NEAR

Witnesses Identify Wounded Man as Cafe-Owner Killer.

CANTON — (AP) — Solution of the holdup-slaying of Robert Efinger, Canton cafe proprietor, was believed imminent today by local police after witnesses identified a 28-year-old wounded ex-convict as one of two men who killed Efinger May 16 and escaped with $13,800 in cash.

Detective Captain E. E. Clark said the suspect was identified yesterday in Cleveland's city hospital by witnesses to the sensational gun fight in which Efinger died trying to prevent the bandits from seizing money he had drawn from a bank to cash defense payroll checks of his cafe customers.

The suspect, Clark said, was wounded in Detroit on June 13 as he fled an attempted hold-up there. He was admitted to the Cleveland hospital after attaches found him lying on the hospital lawn the morning after the Detroit shooting.

Clark said the wounded man also "resembled" one of two men who robbed Stone's Grill here of $3,400 June 6.

WHEELER, NYE URGE REQUEST ON JULY 4TH

Taft Favors Exploration of Possibilities Without Public Action.

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON—President Roosevelt was urged today by two foes of administration foreign policy to make a Fourth of July plea for a negotiated peace in the European war.

Senators Wheeler (D.-Mont.) and Nye (R.-N. D.) voiced the opinion that the president's independence day address to the nation would give him "an appropriate opportunity" for such a message.

A third administration critic, Senator Taft (R.-Ohio) expressed himself in favor of having Mr. Roosevelt explore possibilities, but thought this should be done without publicity.

The three senators, in separate statements, took the position that, thanks to the unexpected Russo-German conflict, the time was ripe for Great Britain to secure a favorable peace with the Axis.

There was no expectation here, however, that the Wheeler-Nye-Taft suggestions would be acted on. Administration officials repeatedly have stressed their conviction that a negotiated peace at this time would be equivalent to a Hitler-dictated peace, and that this government had no desire to be a party to any such settlement.

Nevertheless, Wheeler argued that although German armies might conquer territory, the diverse nationalities and conflicting interests of subjugated nations would cause Hitler's system to "crack and crumble."

Nye declared that "American Independence day would be a grand time for the president to insist upon Britain and Germany undertaking negotiations for peace."

Taft's opinion was that negotiations would have a better chance of success without publicity.

He said he did not believe this country "should force peace on Britain" but professed concern "over the apparent determination of the administration to prevent peace."

"I don't think we can assume Hitler will be unreasonable," Taft declared. "The Russian war makes it more likely he will be reasonable. He might not want to retain control of Belgium, Holland and the other little countries, although he might want an European economic union. Maybe there ought to be such a union."

CLAIM RUSSIAN RESISTANCE IN TOTAL CHAOS

Germans Assert Whole Line Smashed But Moscow Says Thrust Halted.

miles inside the old border of the Ukraine, on the road to Kiev, the capital.

"Throughout the whole night, our troops in heavy fighting stemmed the advance of enemy troops," a Soviet war bulletin said.

Authoritative quarters in London asserted there was "a general feeling the German drives were slowing up," but Russia's Premier Joseph Stalin in a rare speech warned his people of grave danger and called upon them to combat the invaders with a huge "scorched earth" campaign.

"Foment guerilla warfare everywhere . . . blow up bridges and roads . . . set fire to the forests!" Stalin ordered.

Speaking in his role as chairman of the new defense committee, a post he only recently assumed, Stalin laid down these rules for fighting:

"In case of a forced retreat of Red army units, all rolling stock must be evacuated, the enemy must not be left a single engine, a single railway car, not a single pound of grain or a gallon of fuel. All valuable property including non-ferrous metals, grain and fuel which cannot be withdrawn must without fail be destroyed.

"In areas occupied by the enemy, guerilla units, mounted and foot, must be formed, diversionist groups must be organized to combat enemy troops, to foment guerilla warfare everywhere, to blow up bridges, roads, damage telephone and telegraph wires and to set fire to forests, stores and transports.

"In occupied regions conditions must be made unbearable for the enemy and all his accomplices. They must be hounded and annihilated at every step."

The speech, broadcast at 6 a. m. (10 p. m. Wednesday EST) and repeated at intervals during the day on public loudspeaker systems and on house radios, marked the first time the Russian people had heard Stalin's voice since 1936 when he announced the constitution.

He expressed gratitude to Britain and to the United States and referred to the people of Europe and America as "loyal allies."

"Our war for the freedom of our country," he said, "will merge with the struggle of the peoples of Europe and America for their independence, for democratic liberties. . . ."

The Soviet war bulletin, far from indicating any general collapse of Russia's armies, reported fierce battles were raging in the vicinity of Borisov, 50 miles along the 450-mile motor highway from Minsk to Moscow, and on a triangular front 70 miles east of German-captured Lwow, in old Poland.

"In the Borisov direction," the Soviet communique said, "advanced elements of the enemy repeatedly attempted to cross the Berezina river, but all his attempts everywhere were frustrated by counter-attacks of our troops."

In the far north, in violent all-night fighting, the Russians declared they had inflicted "a great defeat" on two German infantry divisions—about 30,000 troops — which yesterday launched a drive up the Sredni peninsula against the ice-free Arctic port of Murmansk.

London military advices said the Germans were massing in the Dvinsk sector, in Latvia, for a powerful thrust at Leningrad, Russia's second biggest city. This movement, it was said, had been "working up" for 48 hours.

In his broadcast, Stalin conceded the fall of Lithuania to the Germans, along with most of Latvia, western White Russia and part of the western Ukraine.

Conflicting versions of the Nazi drive into the Ukraine came from Moscow and Berlin.

The Russians declared officially that German attempts to break through the Rowne area, 45 miles east of Luck, in Poland, were "everywhere smashed by the firm, stubborn resistance of our troops."

The German commentary Dienst Aus Deutschland asserted that Nazi "speed troops" had swept past Lwow and had already left the Pinsk marshes behind in a drive toward the city of Kiev.

On the Baltic front, where the Germans were aiming at Leningrad, Berlin asserted that Nazi troops had crossed the Dvina river, leaving broken Russian forces behind hopelessly trying to break out of the Riga-Dvinsk-Tilsit triangle. German columns, it was said, were now pouring into Estonia.

There was no confirmation in Berlin of reports that Murmansk had been occupied by Alpine troops from Norway, but the Russians said an offensive in that area by about two divisions was halted.

In the western air war, RAF bombers flew again on overnight raids aimed at the Ruhr, the Rhineland and northwest Germany and Berlin sources said several western German cities and one northern city were bombed, but ineffectively. The Germans reported sinking a merchantman in raids on Britain.

LIFE 'BACK STAGE' BECOMES TURMOIL AT CURTAIN TIME

By BURL BAUCHMAN

Did you ever wonder what "back stage" is like? I did. It's a hectic place at times, I found out during a visit to the Ohio theater yesterday.

The "Follies Unique" was about to go on, and the first thing I knew some one had called, "Places, three minutes."

There was a hustle and bustle among the girls and the orchestra members took their seats.

"Charlie, lights full up. Music. Curtain." It was Mrs. Joe Karston, stage manager and director, giving orders for the show.

They got off to a good start. Pardon me, what's this? Here's some guys with a bunch of hoops getting ready to go on before the girls are through with their first song.

Look out, here comes the girls and there goes the hoops. "Nice hooping too," says me.

"Hey, Charlie, your next cue is drowned," shouts Mrs. Karston.

What goes on here? The girls just don't have time to change in the dressing room. They do it right off stage.

"Hurry, hurry, girls, you're on next, you know," warns the stage director.

What's that thing in a barber chair? Oh, I see, a ventriloquist's dummy! The ventriloquist just stuck the head on it.

Say, there's a lovely lady. Charlie, who's the "gal" standing behind the barber chair?

"That," said Charlie, "is Susan Page, the stocking model.

What's that- Oh, the mike cord is broken. That would have to happen just when Susan's out there. But such is life. The show goes on.

"Give me your screw-driver, Joe," yells Charlie. There, the mike's working again. And there's the curtain. What an applause. Take another bow.

The Emcee has the next number. He's going to do something. Say, this guy's got something. Look at him slap that mud around into artistic and comical faces. Yes sir, that's all right. Clap. clap.

Here come the girls again Isn't that classy toe dancing by the girl in the center? That deserves a hand and gets it.

I wonder who those three fellows are standing over in the left wing. The Emcee says they are singers from the radio network. Nice comical stuff too.

"Give 'em up bright, Charlie," calls the stage manager. The girls are lined up for the last number.

"Pull the strings, Joe." There she is folks, the last curtain. And say folks, it's really a good show too. And the troopers didn't show they were tired even though only a few hours before they had played an engagement 900 miles from Mansfield.

And I got tired writing this!

Admit Nazi Drive Behind Schedule

By KENNETH DOWNS
(INS Staff Correspondent)

ANKAKA—German quarters in Ankara admitted privately today that the Nazi drive against Russia is running behind schedule.

Losses in men and material have been extremely heavy, they revealed, with tank losses running to many hundreds and casualties to the tens of thousands.

These losses probably surpass anything the Germans have suffered previously throughout the entire war.

Today the Germans in Ankara admit it will take more than three weeks to capture Moscow, as was originally scheduled, but they are confident of success. Nevertheless, they admit that success will not be as quick or as cheap as they anticipated.

On the credit side of the ledger, the biggest point made by the Germans is that they are devastating the Russian air force and anticipate winning clear control of the air.

The first news of a first-hand nature from Russia likewise stresses the stubbornness of Russian resistance, the heavy slaughter of infantry and the destruction of armored vehicles suffered by both sides.

Russian morale is described as extremely high, with volunteers—men and women of all sorts and from all sections — clamoring to serve in factories if not in the field.

The general opinion in Russia is that the Russo-German conflict will prove a long, hard war—but the Russians are universally confident in their ultimate victory.

only city in Ohio and one out of seven in the country which will be used to train instructors for the regular air corps or as pilots to transport materials or men for military needs.

Harrington stated that he had already ordered six new training planes for the course and that the addition of W. R. Peters of Asheville, N. C., to his staff of instructors brought its strength up to six.

Six of the trainees at the base will come from Chicago and the remaining six from all parts of Ohio, according to Harrington. They already hold civilian pilot licences and will graduate with a flight instructor's and commercial pilot's license.

Harrington said that the government was designing a special military uniform for trainees at such posts and that the men will live under military discipline while taking the course.

Training here will include acrobatics, long-range flying and all phases of flying needed to instruct pilots in the air corps.

MARSHALL ASKS RIGHT TO SEND TROOPS ABROAD

Urges Standing Army For U. S. of 2,500,000 Men, Extension of Service Time.

to serve are questions to be determined by their commander-in-chief and the congress."

In asking authority to keep selectees in service, the army chief of staff pointed cut that the scattering of selectees to Hawaii, the Aleutian Islands and elsewhere, and the use of these troops as "task forces" for possible special operations, makes it advisable not to muster these men out of the army at the end of their year's training period.

Marshall said that in the light of the present world military situation he believes that "our interests are imperilled and that a grave national emergency exists."

Differences of views regarding national policy, he said, should not be permitted to obscure the facts relating to the preparation of the armed forces for service.

The chief of staff declared that events of the past few days had given "even more forcible indications of the suddenness with which armed conflict can spread to areas hitherto considered free from attack.

" . . . It is here that legal limitations, acceptable at the time of their passage, now hamstring the development of the army into a force immediately available for whatever defensive measures may be necessary."

Marshall pointed out that while regular units of the army may be used as components for special "task forces" the national guard organization must be utilized for the special supporting units such as anti aircraft, heavy artillery, engineers, etc. In addition, he said, "plans for large units must cover every conceivable contingency, based on the means available."

The general said that time is required to prepare such forces, and, under present conditions, "we must submit these plans to the time consuming business of public investigation and debate — along with the advertisement of such plans to the world at large."

"I submit that the limitations referred to should be removed as quickly as possible if we are to have a fair opportunity to protect ourselves against the coldly calculated, secret and sudden action that might be directed against us."

The army chief of staff recalled that American history includes some "unfortunate incidents" which have resulted from quite similar legal difficulties, and "which risked a battle or possibly a campaign." In the present crisis, "the risks to the nation are far more serious," he asserted.

Marshall again repeated his request for necessary legislation to "vitalize" the army leadership by removing from the active list officers who through "lack of qualities of vigor, and intelligent, aggressive leadership," slow down the development of the emergency army.

In the case of officers in the regular army, Marshall said, the law governing their removal from the active list requires a procedure "so cumbersome as to make it totally ineffective during a national emergency."

the republics uniting in such a policy of benevolent neutrality would be that the United States—if it became involved in war with the Axis—could utilize the naval bases, airfields and other defense facilities of South and Central American nations. At present the southernmost U. S. base is the site obtained in British Guiana and installations there are far from complete.)

The United States reply to Uruguay's proposal was made public last night by the state department. The note, signed by Sumner Welles, acting secretary of state, pointed out that the United States already has pledged itself to permit the other American republics to utilize all United States defense facilities and has provided practical financial assistance to the other American nations to aid in strengthening the continent's defense.

"Constructive and far sighted action now on the part of all the American republics acting together will ensure the preservation for future generations of those liberties and other blessings which our forefathers so laboriously gained."

Italian Commander Agrees To Surrender

CAIRO, Egypt — (AP) — The Italian commander at Debra Tabor, one of the last strongholds of Italian resistance in Ethiopia, has agreed to surrender with about 4,200 men, the British Middle East headquarters declared today.

It said the terms were the same as those imposed on the Duke of Aosta, viceroy of Ethiopia, when he capitulated May 19 at Amba Alaji and was compelled to surrender all his men and equipment except officers' small arms.

Debra Tabor is in northwest Ethiopia, just east of Lake Tana.

The 4,200 men who thus fall to the British include about 3,000 Italians and 1,200 African troops.

BROADWAY

—By Dorothy Kilgallen

You Meet Interesting People.

(And It's the Little Things That Fascinate You.)

CELEBRITIES have ways of relaxing almost as many and varied as the shades of hair in a Broadway chorus lineup. Sam Harris goes to Central park, George M. Cohan feeds the pigeons in front of the Metropolitan Museum, Tallulah Bankhead visits the zoo at night (which may explain why people give her marmosets and lion cubs!)

Dorothy Kilgallen

John Steinbeck does half a day's work, like cutting down timber; Gertie Lawrence knits, and Victor Mature rides in a horse and buggy.

Joan Crawford takes her shoes off, nibbles on little hard cookies, and has her hair washed. She has her hair washed oftener than any girl I know.

Sometimes it's quite a letdown when you see a Hollywood hero in person, but if anyone tells you she was disappointed in Cesar Romero in the flesh, mow her down with a cutting look. Celluloid libels him.

Jack Dempsey has two weaknesses: he's a soft touch for a "touch" from any down and outer in the boxing racket, and he's a pushover for his two little daughters, who rule him with an iron hand.

Prince Bishnu of Nepal is the best audience in town for glamor girls, because he always listens very attentively, and rarely says anything himself.

Funnyman Fred Allen is probably the last of the tobacco-nibbling contingent in show business.

Because Joe DiMaggio operates a restaurant on the coast during his winter layoff, he's a "restaurant snooper" when he's travelling with a ball club. In every town, he heads for the best Italian restaurant, to see if he can pick up any pointers for his own place.

When you play ping pong with Eddie Cantor his pop-eyes seem to come back at you at the same time the ball does, and you don't know which of the three to try to return.

Mrs. Jimmy Cagney still brings James a home-cooked lunch when he's "on location" close enough to their home.

Champ Joe Louis is so interested in golf that he's all but lost interest in boxing. He told Mike Jacobs, "Don't book me any fights in August, I've got to play in that tournament."

Mae West, who raves about California sunshine, never gets any of it. She lives in an apartment and rides around in a bullet-proof, non-ventilated limousine.

Ethel Waters, at rehearsals, is more temperamental than Ethel Barrymore ever thought of being . . . Walter Wanger has a way of talking like a lawyer pleading a case. . . . Belle Baker still talks about her son, and brags about his bright saying, as if he were an infant.

Grace and Paul Hartman, the dance satirists, don't drink liquor, but they're fiends for a fancy sundae. They have their own soda fountain at home, and they've been known to make a quart of chocolate syrup disappear in one afternoon.

Among the top 10 rabid Dodgers fans must be listed Harry James, the Hotel Lincoln bandleader, who has paid tribute to his favorite nine by writing three songs in honor of Ebbets Field—"Flatbush Flanagan," "The Dodgers Fan Dance" and "Take Me Out to the Dodgers, Rodgers."

When his team loses a game, James arrives on the bandstand with a face longer than Oscar Levant's hair; on days when the Dodgers win, he leads his men like an inspired Toscanini.

Arlene Whelan likes gardenias, and sometimes wears six at a time, slung in a row from shoulder to hip. . . . Mayor LaGuardia always makes a trick face when a camera's around. He must have a subconscious notion that it's against the law to look pretty in a picture.

William Saroyan has casual romances with girls you hear about via the Broadway columns, but his real love is a little Armenian girl in San Francisco, "who has teeth spaced wide apart and just sits and smiles and never says anything."

When anybody approaches Alfred E. Smith with a "terrific idea," the former governor is inclined to say: "Stop now if you're going to tell me we should convert the upper stories into a hotel."

HOLLYWOOD

—By Robbin Coons

HOLLYWOOD—It's none of my business (I being a stranger here myself) but it seems to me that some of the theme songs of the recent movie exhibitors' convention had comedy lyrics.

Frequently voiced was the plaint that writers of my ilk, commenting on movies in advance of their release, were a pain in the neck to the exhibiting gentry who would rather, if I infer correctly, let an unprejudiced audience judge each movie for itself—after paying on the line for the privilege.

Often the wail was that no other industry 'press-previews' its products. Motor cars, for one example, have no ungracious carps to tell prospective buyers that the new models are fine except for, say, leaky carburetors and weak differentials.

True enough. But the auto-buyer can see the model and ride in it before he buys. I've yet to see a movie house with the box office at the exit.

And then an auto model stays around a while, usually a year. It had better be good or it'll stay longer—on the floor. A movie is a will-o'-the wisp, here today and gone tomorrow or next week. Usually without even fumigating the house, the exhibitor peddles its successor on the screen. The new one may be caviar or spinach, champagne or beer. Does he just want to sell tickets? (After all, he's only human, so what do you think?)

All the tooth-gnashing seems even sillier after the many years all of us have understood that "reviews" neither helped nor hurt a movie. I still believe this to be true.

A movie's "opening day" receipts may be better if the public has no inkling, but if the movie smells, the odor will be all over town by nightfall. Reliable old Word-of-Mouth is a sleepless smeller-outer. Besides all which, the first day's customers, stung, are likely to resent it. They may even remember it for weeks and months, and stay home pouting those nights or weeks when the exhibitor really has something to offer. This would make the exhibitor sore, too, and what an unhappy world we'd live in!

COMPLETE PLAN ON PREPAYMENT OF INCOME TAX

Treasury Setup To Include Sale of Securities To 'Ease Burden.'

(By United Press)

WASHINGTON—The treasury department has completed a plan for pre-collection of 1942 income taxes through the sale of tax anticipation securities, it was learned today.

Secretary of the Treasury Henry Morgenthau is expected to reveal the plan's details shortly.

The plan, developed in connection with the record $3,504,400,000 (B) tax bill approved by the house ways and means committee yesterday, has two principal objectives:

1. Ease the taxpayer's burden by permitting him to anticipate his tax bill with systematic savings over a period of months.

2. Bring the 1942 tax revenue into the treasury prior to the regular collection date.

Under the plan, the treasury is expected to offer new securities maturing on the 15th of March, June, September and December, the quarterly income tax installment dates. Purchasers will receive a return on their investment equivalent to less than one per cent annual interest.

Officials said that the rate of return on the new securities must necessarily be low in order to avoid diversion of public investment from other securities, such as the defense savings bonds which return at maturity more than two per cent on the original investment.

The securities will start at a low denomination, such as $25.

They will not be transferable. A taxpayer may cash in his security prior to its maturity without loss on its face value, but he will lose the small rate of return.

Meanwhile, the house ways and means committee gave the legislative drafting service the task of preparing a bill embodying its proposals for changes in individual and corporation taxes and excise levies.

Chairman Robert Doughton, (D., N. C.), scheduled a committee meeting July 14 to give the measure final approval. The house is expected to consider the bill soon thereafter.

BODY FOUND

Remains of 12th Victim of Boat Disaster Recovered.

HARPSWELL, Me.—(AP)—Casco Bay today gave up the 12th body from the cabin cruiser 'Don' disaster, in which 35 excursionists apparently died. The body was not immediately identified.

Hope that at least one of the party might have survived faded when State Lieutenant John E. Marks branded as a hoax a note found in a preserve jar.

A searcher for bodies still missing said he found the note off Bailey Island. Scribbled on wrapping paper, it read: "Am on island. Hurt. Jack."

One of those aboard the Don when the craft set out from Dyer's Cove last Sunday on a 40-mile trip to Monhegan Island was Jack Kersey, 42, of Rumford.

HIGHLY PLEASED BY BIG BOMBER

Pilot Says 41-Ton Craft Could Land on Almost Any Airport In Nation.

(By Associated Press)

RIVERSIDE, Calif. — Highly pleased with a second test flight in the giant B-19 bomber, Maj. Stanley M. Umstead said today he is confident the new 41-ton flying laboratory could take off and land at almost any airport in the country.

Umstead, chief army test pilot, wheeled the huge $3,500,000 craft through southern California skies for 90 minutes yesterday at altitudes ranging up to 10,000 feet. A thousand spectators watched the takeoff from nearby March field.

Afterward, Umstead described the bomber's flight as "a perfect performance." It took off after only a 17-second run and, upon landing, stopped within 1,500 feet.

During the ship's second hop, Umstead carried out tests he did not attempt when he flew it to March field from its factory field at Santa Monica, 75 miles away, last Friday.

Several times he fully extended and then retracted into the belly of the plane the heavy eight-foot wheels and the remainder of its massive landing gear. He said they worked fine.

Umstead also was pleased with new adjustments to the controls. Mechanics had removed some of the super-sensitiveness of the plane which, on its maiden flight, caused the pilot to over-control. This produced a slight wobbling at intervals in the wings.

The bomber is scheduled to remain here for additional tests for about 60 days. The next tentatively is set for Tuesday. Later, it is to be flown to Wright field, Dayton, where it formally is to be taken over by the army if all tests are satisfactory.

'MRS. PARKINGTON,' NEW NOVEL BY BROMFIELD, TO BE HIS 14TH

Louis Bromfield has a new novel underway which must be finished by January when it will be placed in production by Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer motion picture studios, it became known today as the Mansfield author prepared to leave for another quick trip to Hollywood.

The 14th novel Bromfield has written, and the third to be purchased by a motion picture corporation the forthcoming story, bearing the title, "Mrs. Parkington," deals with an old American family.

"Night In Bombay," is already in production at the M-G-M studios while "Wild Is the River," is slated for early production by Columbia. The latter production will be released within two months after the book published by Harper and Brothers, Nov. 20.

First published in serial form, "Wild Is the River," a story of New Orleans at the time of the Civil war, was introduced in the July issue of Cosmopolitan magazine.

Motion picture production of the picture sets a precedent as far as the release date of a picture will be almost simultaneously with publication of the book.

Bromfield's trip to the west coast Saturday is occassioned by his adaptation of Ernest Hemingway's story "For Whom the Bell Tolls," which is being produced by Paramount. An outline of the script had been sent to Paramount today and the dialog will be written upon the author's return to Malabar Farm next Thursday.

Laff-a-Day

"The nicest-looking fellow tried to pay for my lunch today. He got away with it, too."

Traveling 2,500 miles by automobile in four days, Mr. and Mrs. George Neubert of Oakland, Calif., arrived in Mansfield last night for a visit. Neubert, a former resident of Mansfield, said the excellent highways between Mansfield and California made it possible for him to make the trip in four days. Although they arrived here on one of the hottest days of the year, the Neuberts think Mansfield's weather is ideal. They are visiting his brother, William Neubert, 712 Bowman street.

Msgr. F. A. Schrieber, who headed St. Peter's Catholic church in Mansfield for 25 years, celebrated his 55th anniversary in the priesthood today at his church in Akron. He left Mansfield 19 years ago to become pastor of St. Bernard's Catholic church and is still with that church. He officially observed the anniversary by celebrating high mass this morning. Priests of the Akron district honored him last night at a dinner at the Mayflower hotel.

Mansfield motorists may soon see parking meters facing them at a 45 degree angle rather than at right angle to the street as they are now stationed. Councilman Russell D. Porch at council meeting Tuesday suggested that the meters be turned slightly so that police could check meter violations more efficiently from motorcycles and police cruisers. Police Chief Meade K. Bates said that the matter would be investigated.

Kathleen Gehl, employed in the Boy Scout office, is faced with what seems to be a knotty problem. Floyd Dent, Scout executive, brought a stuffed ant eater which was given him into the office and left it directly opposite her desk. She refuses to touch the animal and yet she hates to see it. An ant eater makes his living by plowing into ant hills and catching ants in his shell. Then he moves to water, drowns the insects and then feasts on them. The more Miss Gehl thinks of this profession the worse she feels.

HOLDUP SLAYING SOLUTION NEAR

Witnesses Identify Wounded Man as Cafe-Owner Killer.

CANTON — (AP) — Solution of the holdup-slaying of Robert Efinger, Canton cafe proprietor, was believed imminent today by local police after witnesses identified a 28-year-old wounded ex-convict as one of two men who killed Efinger May 16 and escaped with $13,800 in cash.

Detective Captain E. E. Clark said the suspect was identified yesterday in Cleveland's city hospital by witnesses to the sensational gun fight in which Efinger died trying to prevent the bandits from seizing money he had drawn from a bank to cash defense payroll checks of his cafe customers.

The suspect, Clark said, was wounded in Detroit on June 13 as he fled an attempted hold-up there. He was admitted to the Cleveland hospital after attaches found him lying on the hospital lawn the morning after the Detroit shooting.

Clark said the wounded man also "resembled" one of two men who robbed Stone's Grill here of $3,400 June 6.

WANTS VOTE

Miller, who yesterday voted with 18 other councilmen in majority support of an ordinance approving the purchase price, said the people should be given the final decision whether they want to put themselves in debt for the acquisition.

WHEELER, NYE URGE REQUEST ON JULY 4TH

Taft Favors Exploration of Possibilities Without Public Action.

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON— President Roosevelt was urged today by two foes of administration foreign policy to make a Fourth of July plea for a negotiated peace in the European war.

Senators Wheeler (D.-Mont.) and Nye (R.-N. D.) voiced the opinion that the president's independence day address to the nation would give him "an appropriate opportunity" for such a message.

A third administration critic, Senator Taft (R.-Ohio) expressed himself in favor of having Mr. Roosevelt explore possibilities, but thought this should be done without publicity.

The three senators, in separate statements, took the position that, thanks to the unexpected Russo-German conflict, the time was ripe for Great Britain to secure a favorable peace with the Axis.

There was no expectation here, however, that the Wheeler-Nye-Taft suggestions would be acted on. Administration officials repeatedly have stressed their conviction that a negotiated peace at this time would be equivalent to a Hitler-dictated peace, and that this government had no desire to be a party to any such settlement.

Nevertheless, Wheeler argued that although German armies might conquer territory, the diverse nationalities and conflicting interests of subjugated nations would cause Hitler's system to "crack and crumble."

Nye declared that "American Independence day would be a grand time for the president to insist upon Britain and Germany undertaking negotiations for peace."

Taft's opinion was that negotiations would have a better chance of success without publicity.

He said he did not believe this country "should force peace on Britain" but professed concern "over the apparent determination of the administration to prevent peace."

"I don't think we can assume Hitler will be unreasonable," Taft declared. "The Russian war makes it more likely he will be reasonable. He might not want to retain control of Belgium, Holland and the other little countries, although he might want an European economic union. Maybe there ought to be such a union."

CLAIM RUSSIAN RESISTANCE IN TOTAL CHAOS

Germans Assert Whole Line Smashed But Moscow Says Thrust Halted.

miles inside the old border of the Ukraine, on the road to Kiev, the capital.

"Throughout the whole night, our troops in heavy fighting stemmed the advance of enemy troops," a Soviet war bulletin said.

Authoritative quarters in London asserted there was "a general feeling the German drives were slowing up," but Russia's Premier Joseph Stalin in a rare speech warned his people of grave danger and called upon them to combat the invaders with a huge "scorched earth" campaign.

"Foment guerilla warfare everywhere . . . blow up bridges and roads . . . set fire to the forests!" Stalin ordered.

Speaking in his role as chairman of the new defense committee, a post he only recently assumed, Stalin laid down these rules for fighting:

"In case of a forced retreat of Red army units, all rolling stock must be evacuated, the enemy must not be left a single engine, a single railway car, not a single pound of grain or a gallon of fuel. All valuable property including non-ferrous metals, grain and fuel which cannot be withdrawn must without fail be destroyed.

"In areas occupied by the enemy, guerilla units, mounted and foot, must be formed, diversionist groups must be organized to combat enemy troops, to foment guerilla warfare everywhere, to blow up bridges, roads, damage telephone and telegraph wires and to set fire to forests, stores and transports.

"In occupied regions conditions must be made unbearable for the enemy and all his accomplices. They must be hounded and annihilated at every step."

The speech, broadcast at 6 a. m. (10 p. m. Wednesday EST) and repeated at intervals during the day on public loudspeaker systems and on house radios, marked the first time the Russian people had heard Stalin's voice since 1936 when he announced the constitution.

He expressed gratitude to Britain and to the United States and referred to the people of Europe and America as "loyal allies."

"Our war for the freedom of our country," he said, "will merge with the struggle of the peoples of Europe and America for their independence, for democratic liberties. . . ."

The Soviet war bulletin, far from indicating any general collapse of Russia's armies, reported fierce battles were raging in the vicinity of Borisov, 50 miles along the 450-mile motor highway from Minsk to Moscow, and on a triangular front 70 miles east of German-captured Lwow, in old Poland.

"In the Borisov direction," the Soviet communique said, "advanced elements of the enemy repeatedly attempted to cross the Berezina river, but all his attempts everywhere were frustrated by counter-attacks of our troops."

In the far north, in violent all-night fighting, the Russians declared they had inflicted "a great defeat" on two German infantry divisions—about 30,000 troops — which yesterday launched a drive up the Sredni peninsula against the ice-free Arctic port of Murmansk.

London military advices said the Germans were massing in the Dvinsk sector, in Latvia, for a powerful thrust at Leningrad, Russia's second biggest city. This movement, it was said, had been "working up" for 48 hours.

In his broadcast, Stalin conceded the fall of Lithuania to the Germans, along with most of Latvia, western White Russia and part of the western Ukraine.

Conflicting versions of the Nazi drive into the Ukraine came from Moscow and Berlin.

The Russians declared officially that German attempts to break through the Rowne area, 45 miles east of Luck, in Poland, were "everywhere smashed by the firm, stubborn resistance of our troops."

The German commentary Dienst Aus Deutschland asserted that Nazi "speed troops" had swept past Lwow and had already left the Pinsk marshes behind in a drive toward the city of Kiev.

On the Baltic front, where the Germans were aiming at Leningrad, Berlin asserted that Nazi troops had crossed the Dvina river, leaving broken Russian forces behind hopelessly trying to break out of the Riga-Dvinsk-Tilsit triangle. German columns, it was said, were now pouring into Estonia.

There was no confirmation in Berlin of reports that Murmansk had been occupied by Alpine troops from Norway, but the Russians said an offensive in that area by about two divisions was halted.

In the western air war, RAF bombers flew again on overnight raids aimed at the Ruhr, the Rhineland and northwest Germany and Berlin sources said several western German cities and one northern city were bombed, but ineffectively. The Germans reported sinking a merchantman in raids on Britain.

Italian Commander Agrees To Surrender

CAIRO, Egypt — (AP) — The Italian commander at Debra Tabor, one of the last strongholds of Italian resistance in Ethiopia, has agreed to surrender with about 4,200 men, the British Middle East headquarters declared today.

It said the terms were the same as those imposed on the Duke of Aosta, viceroy of Ethiopia, when he capitulated May 19 at Amba Alaji and was compelled to surrender all his men and equipment except officers' small arms.

Debra Tabor is in northwest Ethiopia, just east of Lake Tana.

The 4,200 men who thus fall to the British include about 3,000 Italians and 1,200 African troops.

Admit Nazi Drive Behind Schedule

By KENNETH DOWNS
(INS Staff Correspondent)

ANKAKA—German quarters in Ankara admitted privately today that the Nazi drive against Russia is running behind schedule.

Losses in men and material have been extremely heavy, they revealed, with tank losses running to many hundreds and casualties to the tens of thousands.

These losses probably surpass anything the Germans have suffered previously throughout the entire war.

Today the Germans in Ankara admit it will take more than three weeks to capture Moscow, as was originally scheduled, but they are confident of success. Nevertheless, they admit that success will not be as quick or as cheap as they anticipated.

On the credit side of the ledger, the biggest point made by the Germans is that they are devastating the Russian air force and anticipate winning clear control of the air.

The first news of a first-hand nature from Russia likewise stresses the stubbornness of Russian resistance, the heavy slaughter of infantry and the destruction of armored vehicles suffered by both sides.

Russian morale is described as extremely high, with volunteers—men and women of all sorts and from all sections — clamoring to serve in factories if not in the field.

The general opinion in Russia is that the Russo-German conflict will prove a long, hard war—but the Russians are universally confident in their ultimate victory.

LIFE 'BACK STAGE' BECOMES TURMOIL AT CURTAIN TIME

By BURL BAUCHMAN

Did you ever wonder what "back stage" is like? I did. It's a hectic place at times, I found out during a visit to the Ohio theater yesterday.

The "Follies Unique" was about to go on, and the first thing I knew some one had called, "Places, three minutes."

There was a hustle and bustle among the girls and the orchestra members took their seats.

"Charlie, lights full up. Music. Curtain." It was Mrs. Joe Karston, stage manager and director, giving orders for the show.

They got off to a good start. Pardon me, what's this? Here's some guys with a bunch of hoops getting ready to go on before the girls are through with their first song.

Look out, here comes the girls and there goes the hoops. "Nice hooping too," says me.

"Hey, Charlie, your next cue is drowned," shouts Mrs. Karston.

What goes on here? The girls just don't have time to change in the dressing room. They do it right off stage.

"Hurry, hurry, girls, you're on next, you know," warns the stage director.

What's that thing in a barber chair? Oh. I see, a ventriloquist's dummy! The ventriloquist just stuck the head on it.

Say, there's a lovely lady. Charlie, who's the "gal" standing behind the barber chair?

"That," said Charlie, "is Susan Page, the stocking model.

What's that- Oh, the mike cord is broken. That would have to happen just when Susan's out there. But such is life. The show goes on.

"Give me your screw-driver, Joe," yells Charlie. There, the mike's working again. And there's the curtain. What an applause. Take another bow.

The Emcee has the next number. He's going to do something. Say, this guy's got something. Look at him slap that mud around into artistic and comical faces. Yes sir, that's all right. Clap. clap.

Here come the girls again Isn't that classy toe dancing by the girl in the center? That deserves a hand and gets it.

I wonder who those three fellows are standing over in the left wing. The Emcee says they are singers from the radio network. Nice comical stuff too.

"Give 'em up bright, Charlie," calls the stage manager. The girls are lined up for the last number.

"Pull the strings, Joe." There she is folks, the last curtain. And say folks, it's really a good show too. And the troopers didn't show they were tired even though only a few hours before they had played an engagement 900 miles from Mansfield.

And I got tired writing this!

only city in Ohio and one out of seven in the country which will be used to train instructors for the regular air corps or as pilots to transport materials or men for military needs.

Harrington stated that he had already ordered six new training planes for the course and that the addition of W. R. Peters of Asheville, N. C., to his staff of instructors brought its strength up to six.

Six of the trainees at the base will come from Chicago and the remaining six from all parts of Ohio, according to Harrington. They already hold civilian pilot licences and will graduate with a flight instructor's and commercial pilot's license.

Harrington said that the government was designing a special military uniform for trainees at such posts and that the men will live under military discipline while taking the course.

Training here will include acrobatics, long-range flying and all phases of flying needed to instruct pilots in the air corps.

MARSHALL ASKS RIGHT TO SEND TROOPS ABROAD

Urges Standing Army For U. S. of 2,500,000 Men, Extension of Service Time.

to serve are questions to be determined by their commander-in-chief and the congress."

In asking authority to keep selectees in service, the army chief of staff pointed cut that the scattering of selectees to Hawaii, the Aleutian Islands and elsewhere, and the use of these troops as "task forces" for possible special operations, makes it advisable not to muster these men out of the army at the end of their year's training period.

Marshall said that in the light of the present world military situation he believes that "our interests are imperilled and that a grave national emergency exists."

Differences of views regarding national policy, he said, should not be permitted to obscure the facts relating to the preparation of the armed forces for service.

The chief of staff declared that events of the past few days had given "even more forcible indications of the suddenness with which armed conflict can spread to areas hitherto considered free from attack.

" . . . It is here that legal limitations, acceptable at the time of their passage, now hamstring the development of the army into a force immediately available for whatever defensive measures may be necessary."

Marshall pointed out that while regular units of the army may be used as components for special "task forces" the national guard organization must be utilized for the special supporting units such as anti aircraft, heavy artillery, engineers, etc. In addition, he said, "plans for large units must cover every conceivable contingency, based on the means available."

The general said that time is required to prepare such forces, and, under present conditions, "we must submit these plans to the time consuming business of public investigation and debate — along with the advertisement of such plans to the world at large."

"I submit that the limitations referred to should be removed as quickly as possible if we are to have a fair opportunity to protect ourselves against the coldly calculated, secret and sudden action that might be directed against us."

The army chief of staff recalled that American history includes some "unfortunate incidents" which have resulted from quite similar legal difficulties, and "which risked a battle or possibly a campaign." In the present crisis, "the risks to the nation are far more serious," he asserted.

Marshall again repeated his request for necessary legislation to "vitalize" the army leadership by removing from the active list officers who through "lack of qualities of vigor, and intelligent, aggressive leadership," slow down the development of the emergency army.

In the case of officers in the regular army, Marshall said, the law governing their removal from the active list requires a procedure "so cumbersome as to make it totally ineffective during a national emergency."

U. S. ENDORSES URUGUAY PLAN

Favors Proposal For Western Republics To Cooperate In Event of War.

the republics uniting in such a policy of benevolent neutrality would be that the United States—if it became involved in war with the Axis—could utilize the naval bases, airfields and other defense facilities of South and Central American nations. At present the southernmost U. S. base is the site obtained in British Guiana and installations there are far from complete.)

The United States reply to Uruguay's proposal was made public last night by the state department. The note, signed by Sumner Welles, acting secretary of state, pointed out that the United States already has pledged itself to permit the other American republics to utilize all United States defense facilities and has provided practical financial assistance to the other American nations to aid in strengthening the continent's defense.

"Constructive and far sighted action now on the part of all the American republics acting together will ensure the preservation for future generations of those liberties and other blessings which our forefathers so laboriously gained."

Mansfield News-Journal

AN INDEPENDENT NEWSPAPER

MANSFIELD, OHIO, THURSDAY, JULY 3, 1941.

Drive carefully during the holiday week-end—consider the consequences if all motorists behaved like some do.

A few days that are "too hot" and a few that are "too cold" serve to direct attention to the fact that most days are just about right.

A survey reveals that America's new soldiers gain an average of ten pounds apiece in the first three weeks of training—which encourages an idea that proper food and exercise is good medicine.

Fly the Flag Tomorrow

WITH Mansfield again prepared for its annual community Fourth of July celebration, including customary afternoon and evening entertainment programs at the fairgrounds, there is one part of tomorrow's observance that should not be overlooked.

The Fourth of July holiday is primarily intended to emphasize patriotism and loyalty to the United States of America, which had its beginning on that memorable July 4, 1776 when the Declaration of Independence was signed.

That beautiful flag, which we call "the Stars and Stripes," is the symbol of national unity which is recognized as an outward sign of patriotism and love of country.

Under ordinary conditions many people are inclined to neglect putting out a flag on special occasions to which such display is appropriate, but it has been the experience in the past that in periods of national stress more flags are seen than at other times.

Tomorrow will be a peculiarly fitting time for flags to wave from all public buildings, along business streets and in front of homes. The size of the flag doesn't matter—large or small, it has the same meaning. Don't neglect to put out a flag tomorrow.

Mansfield To Have Traffic Squad

WHILE city council and administrative officials are moving leisurely toward formation of a five-man traffic squad, as a step toward improving Mansfield's deplorable traffic conditions, it may be timely to consider a few of the ways in which public co-operation can be made helpful along the same line.

As the situation has been heretofore, with practically no restraint on speed or other infractions of traffic regulations, even well disposed motorists can be excused for following the general trend of careless driving, such as exceeding speed limits, ignoring stop signs, disregarding traffic lights, making turns at intersections without giving right of way to pedestrians, and so on.

If the proposed addition of a police traffic squad really means that safety regulations are to be enforced, with warnings, arrests and penalties, it will also mean that the driving habits of many Mansfield motorists will have to undergo quite radical changes.

This will not be as difficult as some may assume, as the average driver in Mansfield and vicinity is as capable of adopting habits of carefulness (under police compulsion) as are the drivers in cities where traffic regulations are consistently enforced.

In traffic law enforcement there is not only need for officers in squad cars and on motorcycles, but observation indicates that there is also requirement for policemen on foot, at busy intersections during heavy traffic hours, and to observe violations of speed limitations, failure to observe traffic signals, ignoring pedestrians in cross walks, etc.

If careful selection of new officers is made—as can be anticipated—and if a real effort toward enforcement of traffic regulations follows—the results should be gratifying.

F.B.I. Does Efficient Job

THE BIG ROUND-UP of spy suspects is reassuring to patriotic Americans. Although it seems to follow the best traditions of spy fiction, it has also been handled with routine F. B. I. thoroughness. Persons charged with conspiracy to engage in espionage activities in the United States will be brought to trial promptly, given a fair hearing and, if convicted, punished according to the law. Following so closely upon the closing of Axis consulates, which were propaganda centers if nothing more, these arrests indicate to the public that "fifth columning" no longer affords a safe and successful career in this country.

It is gratifying, too, that this clean-up has been a quiet, legal and official job. Under our system of government and political ideals, personal and private spy-hunting and persecution should not be practised or encouraged.

One-Year Limit Probable

A PRESIDENTIAL executive order signed a few days before the second draft registration indicates that men called into army training by the selective service act are to be released as their year of training expires. This will be good news to the men and to their families.

The situation, of course, might be changed if conditions become worse. But with the number of men to be inducted in any given year limited to 900,000, and the war department calling for new men from time to time, it looks as if they would return to private life as their turns come.

It is a sensible plan, too. The training camps can't take care of an unlimited number and, if the idea is to train as many men as possible, the only way to spread the preparation is to replace with newcomers the selectees who have completed their stint.

How Old Pans May Serve

A LITTLE simple arithmetic on the aluminum collection of out-of-use household articles may be interesting. The round-up is expected to bring in 20,000,000 pounds of metal. One fighter plane takes about 10,000 pounds. Therefore the discarded percolators and saucepans may contribute to the building of 2,000 planes.

As a matter of fact, the old utensils are more likely to fill a different role. The scrap metal may be employed chiefly in non-defense manufactures such as die castings, where the highest grade is not required. It will help to ease the pinch that may develop from the necessity of putting virtually all the new aluminum into vital defense equipment.

Future historians and next century's students of history may think the events of our day terribly confusing, but they won't know the half of it.

The gas used in this war is mostly hot air.

REASONABLE PROPOSAL

Soldiers Want Letters From Home

—By CHARLES P. STEWART

WASHINGTON — Around our town:

Considering that every traveler who has been from east to west comments on the fact that only one city in the land has a greater proportion of women to men than Washington (that other place being Hollywood), it comes as something of a surprise that the civil service commission has issued a plea for the government to hire more women.

Civil service isn't concerned with the capital's social problems. All it is interested in is correcting employment wrongs. With national defense in full swing, civil service reports that it is difficult to keep young men on the job. If the draft doesn't draw them off, higher wages in the defence trades do.

So civil service makes its appeal: If you can hire a woman, hire a woman. They back this up with statistics, showing that in the last breakdown of figures there were three men working for the government here for every two women. The commission says don't overlook the fact that women can perform almost every kind of work that men can perform—and if you don't believe it take a look at our arsenals and factories.

Civil service's plea is a little more remarkable in view of the report that during defense hiring of the last year the proportionate number of new female employes is almost twice that of new male employes.

Soldiers Want Letters.

AN INTERESTING experiment recently was carried out here with the young men in training. The United Service organizations asked trainees what they would like to have in the way of gifts from home.

No. 1 on the list was "letters from home." This didn't mean altogether letters from Mother or Dad. It meant letters from the gang, too—and friends of the family, and that English teacher in the high school, and old "Doc" who runs the corner drugstore. And what do they want to know? Little chunks of gossip and corner news—who's courting who these days: how that rich little snob got a fender torn off his bright-and-shiny convertible; and how come all-state Joe couldn't make the college team?

Next, they would like handkerchiefs and socks and stamps—not rare stamps either, but the kind you put on letters. Newspapers from the home are right up there among the leaders, because what's going on in the old hometown is a heap more important to a fellow in camp than what's going on in camp is to the folks he left behind.

Down the list, but still pretty swell, are those necessary knick-knacks that take such a chunk of a guy's 21 bucks—razor blades, soap, shaving cream and stuff like that. This includes cigarets and books and magazines if he's a gent who goes for those things.

Army Has Two Navies.

THE navy hasn't yet—but the army has—a two-ocean navy. The army's two-ocean navy consists of everything from rowboats to 33 big transports. All-told it consists of about 1,000 bottoms.

The army's navy has expanded bow over stern in recent months, principally because of the new Atlantic and Pacific bases, but also because of the greatly increased number of airports along the two seaboards. Airports need fuel and fuel needs tankers.

Bases need men and equipment and that means transports and freighters. The army, even now, is building three big transports; one to carry 2,000 troops, and the other two, 1,500 each.

Timely Editorial

"Have Courage."

Assurance, so much needed in these troublous times, was in the Sunday radio address by Pope Pius XII. Reviewing the fact that the evil forces contending for supremacy today often have been manifested before, he proclaimed that through all the strange mixture of apparent evil and good runs the eternal purpose of God.

The speaker was in unique position. The millions who heard him with avowed obedience were of every race and nation. As they listened, they must have forgot the divisions and hatreds which mock the idea of the brotherhood of mankind. They must have glimpsed the baseness and triviality of the quarrels which induce men to blight the prospects of generations, for they were being given a world vision from a celestial viewpoint.

It is noteworthy that the Pope did not present a plan to end the war or hurl anathemas at those engaged in it. His was a spiritual message to the spiritually minded to have "courage in defense of the fundamentals of Christian civilization and confident hope in their triumph."—Detroit News.

Listen World!

Those Spoiled Brats

—By ELSIE ROBINSON

SALUTE to a smart and spunky lady—Dean Virginia C. Gildersleeve, of Barnard college, who, at a recent meeting of the D. A. R. in New York City, broadcast some wholesome but unhappy facts to Young America and its instructors. Said she, without a smidge of apology:

"The Younger Generation shrinks from paying the price of safety because its teachers have allowed the members the freedom to do as they want rather than instructing them in obligations . . . They have never learned to face any more pressing reality than their own desires . . . Because they don't like war, they don't realize they must face war."

And a chorus of hip-hip-hurrahs, plus a whole zoo of tigers, says I to you, V. C. G. For if ever a nation needed a few frank remarks along such lines, it's this one. I'm for Young America a million. I deeply believe that it is, potentially, the smartest, healthiest and most promising generations of young human beings ever produced by any people. But I also believe it is being Spoiled Rotten . . . and that much of that spoiling is being done in our public schools.

Which makes me think of something one of The Kids told me recently. Hitherto the youngster had been in a practical, old-line school which demanded results and got them—or else. He made record marks . . . didn't dream he could do otherwise. Lately, however, he shifted to a new high school whose regime is, to say the least, an ecstatic surprise.

"You see, we have a Progressive Principal now," he explained, with due consideration for my ignorance. "He doesn't make you study just because you're part of the class . . . he treats you like an individual."

"And how might that be?" says I, with a marked lack of enthusiasm.

"Well, you see—there's some kids that can study and there's some that can't. They just can't. They aren't made that way."

"So what?"

"So he doesn't try to force them, the way teachers once did. He realizes they're different. So he gives them a good instructive magazine and lets them go off in the lib'rury 'n' read."

"Just read?"

"That's all—just read. Then, o' course, if they really can study, they'll get ashamed 'n' dig in. If the can't, why what's the use o' naggin 'em?"

Yes, this is a true story. It relates to a school which is widely praised for its "progressive methods." I have no doubt that the teachers in this school are sincere, hard-working, devoted to their profession. But I also believe that they are a greater menace to freedom than a dozen Communist camps or Bunds.

Freedom is not based on Self Expression. Liberty does not consist in doing what we want or refusing to do what we don't want. Democracy is based on Discipline. It is based on co-operative conformance with certain broad ideals of service. And people who haven't learned to co-operate are as dangerous to a nation as mad dogs.

They are a beautiful and heartening sight, these Young Americans we see surging into our school and stores. Physically, they are more beautiful than any children we have ever bred. Mentally, they're keener. But talk to them, probe their depths. What do they know of Sacrifice? Of Idealism? Few have ever heard the word! They're out for what they can get while hte getting's they can get while the getting's our own fault.

AND GOD HELP US IF ANOTHER PAUL REVERE COMES RIDING DOWN THE STREET CRYING "TO ARMS!" FOR THOSE WHO HAVE BEEN TAUGHT THAT SELF-EXPRESSION IS ALL IMPORTANT RISE LATE, IF AT ALL, TO THEIR NATION'S DEFENSE.

Lovett to Control Plane Designs, Navy Planning to Boost Air Force

—By DREW PEARSON and ROBERT S. ALLEN

WASHINGTON—The really important feature of the new air corps set-up announced by Secretary of War Stimson escaped general notice. This was that Assistant Secretary Robert Lovett, hard-hitting World war ace, will have charge of deciding on new models and types of army aircraft.

This is a major reform. Previously the responsibility was scattered among the brass hats, resulting in long delays and other hitches in getting new planes into production. Under the reorganization, Lovett will be boss and able to deal firmly with red-tape and the bureaucrats.

Because he shuns the limelight and works without hoopla, only insiders know that Lovett has been militantly battling the redtape brigade since he entered the war department last December. The reorganization plan, which sets up a unified, autonomous air corps command, was largely Lovett's work.

Note—Major General "Hap" Arnold, commander of the newly created army air forces, is outranked by Lieutenant General Delos G. Emmons, chief of the air force combat command, which is under Arnold. To remedy this incongruous situation, either Arnold will have to be promoted a notch or Emmons' temporary rank, given him last October, will have to be reduced to Arnold's.

Navy Air Plans.

THE navy hasn't announced it yet, but it is formulating a new program to boost its air force to 15,000 planes and 17,000 pilots.

Its present plan calls for 10,400 planes by July, 1943. Expected are 3,600 planes by July, 1941, 7,300 by July, 1942, and the 10,400 peak by the following year. The proposed increase will be requested to keep the air arm abreast of the rapidly materializing two-ocean navy.

Newest Congresswoman.

ELEVEN-YEAR-OLD Goodloe Byron, son of Maryland's new congresswoman, has had his first brush with Capitol Hill politics and doesn't quite understand all of its bitterness, especially when it affects the father of one of his chums.

One of Goodloe's schoolmates is young David Lasser, son of WPA's David Lasser. Lasser, sr., was earnestly trying to combat left-wing radicals inside WPA, but congress, too dense to understand that fact, threw him out of a job.

It happened that the second bill on which Mrs. Byron voted after being inducted into office was the WPA appropriation measure specifically excluding Lasser from drawing his WPA salary. She voted with the mob and Lasser was automatically discharged.

But young David Lasser had not been told of the action of congress. He knew only that Goodloe's mother was one of those who held his father's job in her hands. So, at school recess, David approached Goodloe Byron.

"Please," he appealed, "ask your mom not to vote against Daddy!"

Goodloe said he sure would, but by the time he reached his mother it was too late.

Note—Goodloe's father, Congressman Byron, was killed in an Atlanta plane crash last February. Mrs. Byron succeeded to her husband's congressional seat.

Aluminum Report.

ALUMINUM COMPANY OF AMERICA can thank two anti-New Deal Democrats for those puffs it got in the house military affairs committee's report on deficiencies in the national defense program.

One of the congressmen was Representative Charles I. Faddis, Pennsylvania New Deal-hater, who headed the subcommittee that wrote the report. The other was Representative Andrew J. May of Kentucky, who was chiefly responsible for the full committee's indorsement of it.

This extraordinary report scatchingly blasted the administration for the shortage in aluminum while warmly eulogizing the giant aluminum company, which is under indictment for monopoly and which had just been denounced by a senate committee for obstructing aluminum expansion plans.

After the document had been read, Faddis turned to white haired Representative Ewing Thomason, Texas New Dealer, and bluntly declared, "Let's be practical. Each of us knows how the other stands. I know you're opposed to this report."

"I certainly am," snapped Thomason. "Your contradictory conclusions baffle me. I think the committee should delay consideration for three days so we can study the testimony on which you base your charges."

"I won't agree to that," shouted Faddis. "I demand that the full committee approve my report today, so that it can be publicized in the Sunday newspapers and offset those false charges against the Aluminum company made in the report of Senator Truman's investigating committee."

"You can't ram this down our throats on such sudden notice," broke in Representative John Sparkman, young Alabama New Dealer.

But Faddis did, with the help of May, who used every parliamentary trick to block a move by Sparkman to "open up" the report for revision and debate. Faddis won immediate consideration 11-10, with himself the only Democrat voting "aye." May refused to vote.

Chemicals Next.

THE next major industry slated for priority controls is the chemical industry.

With the demand for plastics soaring because of the shortage in aluminum, steel, nickel and other metals, serious deficiencies are showing up in the chemicals used to produce plastics. At the same time, the heavy demand for explosives is creating a tight situation in chemicals normally used in fertilizer and other non-defense products.

Newspapers and magazines may be hit unless ways are found to overcome a threatened shortage in acids used for photo engraving.

Even undertakers are beginning to feel the pinch. One complained to the OPM last week that he was in danger of being forced out of business because of inability to get formaldehyde for use in embalming.

Merry-Go-Round

THE defense worker training program hasn't been all it should be, but the National Youth administration is clicking 100 per cent, turning out 45,000 trained craftsmen a month. . . . Congress boasts of several tycoons, among them Representative Dick Kleberg of Texas, whose famous King Ranch is the largest in the world. Few know, however, that one member is operator of the world's biggest baby chick farm. He is Elmer H. Wene, who produces nearly 1,000,000 chicks a year on his Vineland, N. J., farm

Man About Manhattan

—By GEORGE TUCKER

(Editor's Note: This is the third article in a series on New York night clubs.)

NEW YORK—Night club! The words conote gaiety, wine, entertainment! Come on, let's go!

Let's go to the Rainbow Room, one of the Big Seven in New York. It's high. It's 65 stories above the sidewalks of New York. Sixty-five stories make 800 feet. But these elevators go fast. They get you there in 36 seconds. They're the fastest elevators in the world. They go 1,400 feet a minute.

Feel that pressure against your ears? Just like a plane. You have to swallow to get rid of it. The elevator operators, like the airline hostesses, ought to provide you with cotton, or chewing gum.

"Rainbow Room to the right," cries the elevator operator, sliding back the door.

You turn right, and you walk into a vast open lounge that has small botanical gardens behind plate glass walls. In these gardens are walks of real flagstone, and ivy, and dwarfed shrubs, and fountains.

You can stand in this lounge and see the whole, painted fantasy of the city at night . . . Millions of soft, winking lights, and Central Park, and the river smoke and the haze . . . You can read neon signs and you can look down and see uninterrupted streams of little toy automobiles, far below.

Then you turn right again, and you come to the Rainbow Room itself. I suppose its name comes from its colors, for its decor is soft rose and gold. The rose is faint, almost a blush, and there are vases on the tables that remind you of the crystals used by mystics.

There is a chandelier as large as a Christmas tree suspended above the oval floor. This floor can revolve, when they want it to. Sometimes they place a piano on the rim of the oval, and a girl sings and plays while the floor revolves . . . In this way, she passes right by you, and sings just to you. It's almost like getting a personal letter.

When the show goes on you see just about everything there is to see in the way of sophisticated supper club talent . . . You see the finest of ballroom dancers, the name teams, the Raye and Naldi's . . . You see Paul Draper, who is the greatest tap dancer in the world . . . You see the clowning Hartmans . . . You see hillbillies, magicians, even table tennis experts putting on a match . . . Not all at once, mind you . . . But that is the level, and a high level it is.

And there are the always enterchanging orchestras . . . Now you swing it, now you rhumba... One moment it's Tin Pan Alley, the next it's gourds and chants and the inexplicable rhythms of the West Indies on a soft summer night.

That's the way it goes, along with the food and the wine and the service.

Yes sir, that's it. That's night club! New York!

(Tomorrow: The rise of the Rhumba.)

Sun Glasses For Safety and Comfort

—By DR. CLENDENING

INVENTION is the mother of necessity, as well as vice versa. In counting over our blessings, we moderns are likely to overlook the little things that are near to us and used regularly. We think of the big ones such as automobiles, airplanes, telephones, the electric light, hot and cold running water, and maybe refrigerators and modern stoves, but we are likely to forget safety pins, screens, fly swatters and palatable toothpaste.

However, I am not sure that, if I were ordered by some superior being to go back to the middle ages and had to make the choice of one modern invention to take back, I wouldn't choose the safety pin rather than the telephone.

One of our most useful small modern comforts are sun glasses. To go back to my opening sentence, invention has practically made them a necessity. With automobile driving on a shiny summer day, cars whizzing at you from all directions, your life, health and liberty may depend upon a clear vision of the street ahead, its markings and other features that are obscured with ordinary vision on a hot, shiny, swimming day.

Sun Glasses for Safety.

Without sun glasses, a street will look like a plain, glary surface, whereas the diminution that good sun glasses gives you brings out a pattern of lines and lanes, of lettering that gives you instruction and direction.

Nowadays the chromium age has fixed things so that something may be shining on your retina all the time, giving you unexplained fatigue and increasing inefficiency of vision. An automobile mudguard with the sun shining on it may have a brightness co-efficient of 1,400,000 which is reduced to 1,665 by sun glasses.

Water glare on a hot day by glinting reflection is the worst of all and may have a brightness co-efficient of 3,339,000. This can be reduced to about a third with nearly any kind of sun glasses and with the polarizing glasses it comes down to 73,000.

It is easy to figure out that fatigue headache and unexplained nervous irritability may be reduced by using proper glasses when boating, sailing, motor boating or fishing.

Filtered Sunshine.

A beam of sunlight is composed of light waves that vibrate in all directions. When they strike a horizontal surface they are deflected into dazzling horizontal rays. The advantage of the polarizing glasses is that they filter these horizontal rays, which are so dazzling, permitting useful light to reach the eyes.

Sun glasses for children are especially valuable, since our modern hygiene so sensibly requires that the little ones get out in the sun most of the day.

A recent letter to this column asked whether it is practical and whether it is harmful to have sunglasses ground for astigmatic and refractional errors. Such glasses can now be obtained, and are certainly to be recommended when errors of refraction need to be corrected.

LIFE'S LIKE THAT

"We were going away for the summer, but my wife advertised our house in the paper and it sounded so attractive we decided to stay home and enjoy it!"

Words of the Wise

Every man has two educations—that which is given to him, and the other, that which he gives to himself. Of the two kinds, the latter is by far the most valuable. Indeed all that is most worthy in a man, he must work out and conquer for himself. It is that, that constitutes our real and best nourishment. What we are merely taught, seldom nourishes the mind like that which we teach ourselves.—(Richter.)

SLASH BUDGET BILL $45,000

Council's Finance Committee Takes Out Funds For Fire, Police Pay Increases.

the extra $10,000 which was to be used for hiring five new men for a traffic squad would not be needed as these men would be paid from parking meter funds. Appropriations for a raise in policemen's salaries would be made later, if necesasry, the chairman said.

Also lopped off was $10,200 asked by the firemen for anticipated increases in salary. The committee slashed the proposed payroll increase out of the budget and stated that the same arrangement for police raises would be made for firemen salary increases.

Six thousand dollars requested by Ernest Adams, city electrician, for a new fire alarm repeater and for transferring signal control equipment from its present quarters in the rear of the fire department to the second floor of the municipal building, was also eliminated

The transfer of equipment hinged on the construction of a city garage and the removal of city equipment from the second floor of the city building Council decided, since funds are not available for the garage, that there was no need for the signal control transfer.

Although the parks department's request for $27,300 was slashed to $18,600, this is $2,400 more than it was given to operate this year.

Few additions were made, $1,000 being added to the street lighting fund for a total of $36,000; $2,000 to the storm sewer and ditch drainage fund for a total of $4,500, and small increases to cover small salary raises for city employes

The firemen's pension request of $8,880 and an anticipated increase of $9 873 were cut to a total of $12 000. The police pension request of $9,980 was retained but the request for $2,400 for anticipated pension increases was eliminated.

ment heads to remain off duty on Saturday.

All offices at the courthouse will be closed both Friday and Saturday as will the offices of Selective Service boards, State Aid for the Aged and the Employment Service office.

Among stores and businesses who have announced they will be closed are the R. B Maxwell company, Morgan, Bogner and Sowash Brothers Dry Cleaners, Mansfield Typewriter and Office Supply and the Building Supply Dealers.

State liquor stores will be closed Friday.

Plans for the fairground celebration include an official opening at 2:30 p. m., playground revue, boxing show and a fireworks display finale at 9:30 p. m. The entire afternoon and evening will include a variety of features.

Highlight of the program will be a five-minute address by President Roosevelt at 4 p. m. on "The Significance of Independence Day In 1941" which will come via nation-wide radio hookups and a public address system at the fairground. It will be followed immediately by a pledge of allegiance to the flag and the singing of the national anthem by the entire listening population throughout the nation.

Plans for the fireworks display have been completed, according to Wyllie, who said that the show would be the largest of its kind in north central Ohio.

At the same time Mansfielders were not ignoring the last opportunity to have fireworks of their own. State legislation has been enacted which prohibits the private purchase of fireworks after this year and Mansfielders have been visiting stands on the outskirts of the city to insure one last fling with the explosives.

to the bridge while he was attempting to pass the other driver's machine.

Most seriously hurt was Frank Peszi, Youngstown, who was taken to Samaritan hospital in Ashland with a possible skull fracture.

Other passengers in the auto, all members of the DeFiore family, received cuts and bruises. Joe, 19, and Peter, 20, were treated at Mansfield General hospital and released. Michael DeFiore, 46; Rose, 36; and Michael, jr., 10, were treated at the hospital and released.

State highway patrolmen reported another accident early this morning when cars driven by Leo Davis, 36, of Cincinnati, and Travis Edward Encelhart, 30, of Columbus, sideswiped five and a half miles north of Mt. Gilead on U. S. Route 42.

Richland county Red Cross authorities urged that motorists observe all rules of the road.

"The vacationist must not only see to his own safety but must anticipate the carelessness of others," warned Bernard C. Hardy, first aid and safety director of the chapter. "The mistake of one motorist may result in a fatality to other drivers who are in the right."

For a safe and sane Fourth of July, Hardy offered the following suggestions.

Get an early start for the holiday week-end trip to get ahead of the congestion and allow plenty of time.

Make a thorough check-up of your tires, brakes, lights and steering gear, for many accidents are the result of faulty equipment.

Keep an eye on the "other fellow," who may cause the accident.

Be sure luggage piled in the back of the car does not obscure rear vision.

Sacrifice that last hour at the beach and leave for home before the crowd.

Remember that driving after dark is many times more hazardous and after-dark accidents are frequently more serious

To swimmers: Enjoy your water sports at patroled beaches.

Bear in mind that expert swimmers can be drowned from cramps caused by swimming too soon after eating.

Calculations For Picnic Menus Given

Here are some calculations that will help make picnics merrier for mother:

One loaf of sandwich bread will make two dozen sandwiches, which may be cut in half.

Two-thirds cup creamed butter will spread both sides of 24 sandwiches. One pint of sandwich filling will fill 24 sandwiches.

One quart of salad will serve six persons.

One four-pound chicken will yield about three cups diced meat.

One two and one-half-pound lobster will yield, when boiled, enough meat for one quart of salad combined with other material.

One-half pound coffee and four quarts boiling water will make enough of the beverage to serve 16 persons.

One and one-half dozen lemons will make enough lemonade to serve 20 to 25 persons, depending largely on the size and juiciness of the fruit.

One quart of frozen mixture will serve six to eight persons. When ice cream means the main part of the refreshments, a larger serving is needed.

One large cake 10 inches in diameter will serve 16.

One pound of salted nuts will serve 25 persons.

One pound of cold boiled ham will serve six to eight persons, and one pound of meat loaf will provide for the same number.

Don't Make Arithmetic A Nightmare

By GARRY C. MYERS, Ph. D.

A mother writes of her problems:

"Some while ago you referred to 'Making Arithmetic Easy,' or 'Simplifying Arithmetic' which from your own observation and experience you had worked out. From what I gleaned it was just what we all needed. We are especially eager to have it during the summer vacation.

"Arithmetic was a nightmare for my eldest girl. Somehow she got through the early grades without mastering the fundamentals of arithmetic.

"I really believe the 'Devil Speed' is partly responsible. Give our youngsters time and an atmosphere of calm and they are very efficient. Rush them and they are almost helpless. The speed system is so cruel. I've watched the speed system ruin the nerves of my four children.

Learning Basic Principles.

"Will you send me all the information I should have to help my youngsters in arithmetic. I'll be so grateful, and know the youngsters will. Please be sure to include the pages of simple addition and subtraction facts and information on where I may secure any self-teaching materials you have written for children. I enclose a self-addressed envelope with a three-cent stamp on it."

All these materials were gladly sent to the writer. Also I wrote suggesting that, in choosing from the self-helps described, that each child be given the booklet or material one or two grades below where he is. Most of all, each should learn by heart the 100 simple addition facts and the 100 simple subtraction facts, attacking only five or six of them at a sitting. Failure to learn these simple basic number facts is far more often the source of arithmetic trouble in the upper grades and high school, than any other cause.

Things Made Too Difficult.

The trouble with most parents and teachers is that they nearly always are looking for something complex and difficult. When one tries to induce them to deal with very simple, easy, basic matters they suppose it amounts to nothing. All too much of our teaching at home or at school consists of making things difficult for children to learn. Yet some people don't like these suggestions because they think them too simple. A certain woman once said she did not like the sermon of a famous preacher whom she had travelled far to hear, because she could understand everything he said. The same fallacious reasoning is sometimes applied to teaching.

Solving Parent Problems.

Q. A mother of two boys, eight and eleven, wishes to know how "to overcome being so upset when I hear my children read." She courteously enclosed a self-addressed, stamped envelope.

A. The only way I know is by eternal self-discipline, made easier as we put ourselves in our imagination in the child's place; walk away from the child the moment you find your voice rising or feel the least disturbance at the pit of the stomach. I sent her my Home Helps in Reading.

Press Search For London Heirs To $30,000 Estate

LOS ANGELES —(INS)— Somewhere in England — if they survived the bombings of London—is a family, members of which would receive a substantial part of an estate worth $30,000 if they could be found.

But so far all efforts to locate them have failed, and information at hand indicates that their home may have been bombed and all or a number of them killed, according to Attorney George Appell of Los Angeles.

The estate is that left by Sallie Cohen, old-time stage actress, who died in Los Angeles last March 20 at the age of 80, and the English beneficiaries are her son, whom she had not seen since he was a baby one year old, and his family, including his three sons and a daughter and also two of his grandchildren.

Miss Cohen—she used her maiden name, although she had been married twice—executed her will last July 2, and included the following bequests:

To her son, Willie Levy, $10,000 in cash plus an interest in a $5,000 trust; to his children, George Morris, Joshua and Dollie, $500 each, and to the two grandchildren, whose names she said she did not know—$1,000 each.

STYLISH FUNERAL

TAMAQUA—(INS)—When "Snappy," the fox terrier pet of the late George W. Moeller, dies, he is going to get a stylish funeral. Moeller's will designated that $20 be set aside to bury his pet in a "Pine box in the yard."

BLAME YOUR LIVER IF—

If your liver doesn't secrete 20 to 30 ounces of bile every day into your intestines—constipation with its headaches, mental dullness and that "half-alive" feeling often result. So you see how important it is to keep bile flowing freely! And what finer aid could one desire than Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets, used so successfully for years by Dr. F. M. Edwards for treating his patients for constipation and sluggish liver bile.

Olive Tablets are unsurpassed in effectiveness because they stimulate liver bile to help digest fatty foods, they tone up muscular intestinal action, at the same time help elimination. Being purely vegetable, Olive Tablets are wonderful! Test their supreme goodness TONIGHT! 15¢, 30¢, 60¢. All druggstores.

HOROSCOPE

For Friday, July 4.

THE HOLIDAY spirit is greatly enhanced if not inspired and stimulated by a most propitious chain of planetary configurations. It is a most beneficent moment for the young and gay-hearted to seek pleasure in the happy and warming cooperation of its fellows, old and young, whose spirits will incline to rise to fine heights of enthusiasm, patriotism and other forms of generosity and magnanimity. While business flourishes and opportunity knocks, the spirit of festivity and good fellowship dominate. Beware slight accidents and dangers.

If It Is Your Birthday.

Those whose birthday it is should be on the eve of a year of insistent opportunity, with the assurance of the highest of fulfilments in attaining cherished goals and the most glowing culminations in securing the delights of hearts' desires. This applies to both old and young, although the latter find unusual advantage and encouragement. Friendship, love, achievement, popularity, perhaps renown, knock at the door of all worthy and generous objectives. Push decisively for place, promotion and happiness, wherever desired.

A child born on this day should be excellently endowed for a successful, happy and influential life. It will have a generous, warm and expansive nature, with prestige and popularity.

Wife Got FAT— No Longer Attractive LOST HUSBAND'S LOVE

The above headlines appeared in a New York newspaper in connection with a divorce trial that had attracted wide attention: "She was a beautiful woman" one witness testified, "but she got fat and is not attractive any more."

Thousands of women are getting fat and losing their appeal just because they do not know what to do. If you are fat, how would you like to lose some of it and at the same time gain in physical charm and attractiveness—more energy—greater activity?

Why not do what thousands of women have done to get rid of pounds of unwanted fat? Take ½ teaspoonful of Kruschen Salts (a famous English formula) in a glass of hot water every morning before breakfast and keep it up for thirty days. Cut out pastries and fatty meats and go light on white bread, potatoes, butter and cream. Then weigh yourself and see how many pounds you have lost.

A bottle of Kruschen Salts will last you for 4 weeks and costs but little. Ask any druggist for a bottle of Kruschen, plain or new effervescent—sparkling—pleasant—and start today to lose fat. Satisfaction guaranteed or money back.

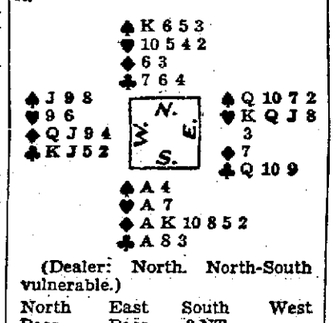
"The Authority on Authorities"

EXTENDED BATH COUP

Practically all players are familiar with the maneuver called the "Bath Coup," whereby a declarer holding the ace-jack and at least one other card plays low on a lead of the king from king-queen of the suit, so that a repeat of the suit will give him a trick he could not win otherwise. Few of us have seen the principle of the play extended to one level lower, and used against a lead of the queen from queen-jack. It won't work except in the rarest circumstances when conditions are just right for it.



(Dealer: North. North-South vulnerable.)

North	East	South	West
Pass	Pass	3 NT

Just imagine yourself holding the West hand against this. What would you lead? The one favored by most players would be the opening actually made by the man who sat there after the queer abrupt bid by that South player in the duplicate tournament in which he was shooting for tops. It was the diamond Q.

Suppose the dummy then went down, and the 3 was played from it, your partner put on the 7 and the declarer played the 8. Wouldn't you then think your partner was giving you an encouraging high card, asking you to repeat the suit, especially since neither the 5 nor the 2 had been played? So you would offer the diamond Q or 4 to the second trick, depending on how you read your partner's probable holding.

If you did, the declarer would promptly run nine tricks, five in diamonds, two in spades and his two other aces.

Notice what would have happened if the declarer had not played as he did to the first trick. If he won it and then tried for game any way he might contrive, he could not possibly get more than four tricks in diamonds, plus four other tricks, being down one. But, having read West as holding four to the Q-J-9 and East for a singleton, he made the play calculated to win, better than either the 5 or 2, to keep those out of sight and make West think East had them both plus one or more of the higher cards in the suit.

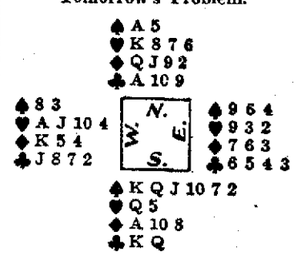
Tomorrow's Problem.



(Dealer: South. Both sides vulnerable.)

How would you play for 6-Spades on this deal against a lead of the clubs?

"Pitfalls of Love"

(A Sequel to Marriage Meddlers)

By ADELE GARRISON

I was glad that Mary could not hear Ronald's captious questioning whether she was aware of Marion's danger, although I knew that after the first second of irritated reaction she would realize, as I did, what terrified anxiety was responsible for his words.

"The book is at the farm at Sag Harbor," I told him, "and my father is coming in with it as fast as he can. It has been so long since the book has been in use that 'Z' cannot remember details, but she remembers the basic facts, and is sure that as soon as she gets her hands on it he can remember everything."

His gusty sigh of relief was plainly audible, but the next second he broke into worried questioning again.

"Have you any idea how soon I could know?"

I thought hard for a second, then put a counter question.

"Where are you?"

"At an all-night garage about ten miles from home," he replied.

Agrees to Phone Ronald.

"Could you stay there for an indefinite time, or would your people waken and miss you?"

"They won't waken, and if they do they'll just have to go back to sleep again," he said, and in his tone was the surface callousness with which youngsters regard the sensibilities of their parents when their own emotions are torn into shreds.

"Then," I said, ignoring his comment, "if you can stay there, and will give me the number, I will call you there as soon as we have found out anything."

"Have you any idea when that will be?" he demanded nervously.

"My father ought to be here inside of two hours," I answered, stretching the time a little so that he would not be chafing at the bit of expectation too soon. "Immediately afterward, 'Z' will go to work. The second she knows anything definite I will call you. But I shall have to be careful what I say over the telephone."

"Of course," he answered. "But I can expect to get a call inside of two hours and a half?"

"Well inside that," I told him, for I knew it would not be long after my father's arrival with the book containing the childish code Marion and Mary had used so long ago, before Mary would be able to decipher the cryptic letter Marion had sent to Ronald.

"Then I'll wait here," he said, and I could visualize him pacing the long floor of the garage with his wild anxiety riding him. "If you want anything before then, I'll be near the telephone."

"Good!" I commented. "Now, one thing more. Do you know about Uncle Dicky's return to Dalemont?"

"Yes, I know that he went on to New York with you, and planned to take the next train back so that he'd get here early tomorrow—I mean this morning," he finished confusedly.

"Yes, it's well into the morning," I answered. "Will you be able to meet that train in the morning?"

Agrees to Meet Dicky.

"Sure thing," he answered. "I won't be able to sleep anyway, but after I've heard from you I'll go home, hoping the folks haven't wakened, and then I'll go out again in time to meet the train. Do you want me to give Uncle Dicky any message?"

"Yes, I do," I replied, "but I won't have any to send him until after 'Z' has read that book. However, remember what I have already told you about it—my father's coming and the rest—so that I won't have to repeat that when I telephone you again."

"I'll remember," he said tensely. "Is there anything more I can do?"

"Nothing, except get yourself in hand," I told him with a sternness I was far from feeling, although I knew that he needed the warning. "You won't be able to do anything for 'Z' if you don't keep yourself calm and conserve your strength," I told him.

"I know that," he said, "and I will try, truly. But oh, Aunt Madge, do you think there's any hope at all?"

Mansfield Finishes First-Half Race In Second Place

Sport Podge by REX HESS

Boisterous Bob Young, who has bustled about bucketball courts and bootball fields these many years, waving his finger and tooting his horn, makes nothing at all of a small patch of H-2-0 nestling amid the hills and dales of a golf course.

All decked out in a new pair of golf shoes Roisterous Robert saw one of his very best Sunday shots sink into the lake at Coolridge just a few days ago.

And then to his amazement and amusement and great satisfaction he witnessed the pellet poked by his partner, Johnny Workman, settle to rest and deep repose in the self-same patch of aqua-unvelva.

* * *

Did this stop Robert? Did he leave those balls to lie and languish in scummy lather? Not Robert.

Too many bootball battles he'd worked in the rain to let a little bit of water stop him.

So in he waded, new shoes and all, to pluck those pellets from the slime.

Said Rapid Robert to the ooze,
"You can't harm this pair of shoes.'

* * *

Bill Mead the gas man picks the hottest day of summer, or one of the hottest, to send me a postcard from Bob's lake, Tichbourne, Ontario, saying:

"Miss your poetry up here. Catching lots of fish. Weather fine."

Can you imagine that? Weather fine, says he. Catching lots of fish, he boasts. Miss your poetry up here, he gloats.

Life must be wonderful at Tichbourne, Ontario.

Tichbourne, Ontario, and lots of fish,
Without my poetry is a fine dish.

There I go, spoiling that fine kettle of fish with that jingle junk.

These vacationers, lolling about in the cool and the shade and stuff, get me down, high, high, high up here on the third floor of the N-J building in the heat and humility.

I hope he comes back wearing fins, and I don't mean the ones with Abe Lincoln's picture in the middle.

Or hadn't you seen a fin lately? I hadn't either. I had to ask the man who owned one before I found out whose picture it was.

Flash: Duke Weber saved from Watery Grave. Or something.

It's a fact, mates as true as I'm tellin' you. Seems Duke went swimming at Liberty park, and he couldn't swim. Got out beyond his depth, he did, and went under. Paul Snyder had to dash out and rescue him.

And later there was Duke sitting on the edge of the pool, and shaking all over. Not because of any cool weather.

Duke should know that fouling half way down the alley in the A. B. C. and getting away with it is no good reason why he can foul half way down the pool. The foul-line judge doesn't ring the bell there.

DiMaggio Reaches Goal

Sets Major League Record For Consecutive Hits.

By JUDSON BAILEY

Poker-faced Joe DiMaggio, the greatest player, excluding pitchers, in the present era of baseball, has reached his goal of a new all-time major league record for hitting in 45 consecutive games, and now can trying shooting for another prize—the "triple crown of batting."

This bauble is the three-way championship in percentage hitting, home runs and runs batted in and is one of the most elusive batting honors in the game.

In the last 15 years it has been won only by the immortal Lou Gehrig, who, incidentally, is to be memorialized by the New York Yankees and fans in a ceremony in Yankee stadium before tomorrow's doubleheader. Gehrig captured all three in 1934 when he hit .363, collected 49 home runs and batted in 165 tallies.

Babe Ruth was never able to hit this target. Rogers Hornsby did it twice in the National league in 1922 and 1925.

DiMaggio has a chance. His blow yesterday to break the 44-year-old mark of Willie Keeler for hitting in the most consecutive games was a sizzling home run, his 18th of the season, and preserved his leadership in this department.

In batting in three runs to help the Yanks rip open the Boston Red Sox 8-4 he also lifted himself within four "RBI" of the league leader, teammate Charley Keller, who hit his 17th homer in yesterday's game.

* * *

Joe's batting average of .348 is 53 points behind the .401 pace of Boston's Ted Williams, but their marks have been sliding closer together for weeks and DiMaggio, in boosting himself from a .306 percentage when his streak started May 15, definitely has come within range of the lead.

* * *

Yesterday's victory was New York's sixth straight and 20th in 24 games in a furious surge that has given the Yanks a lead of three full games over the Cleveland Indians, who were idle yesterday.

In the other American league tussles the Philadelphia Athletics clipped the Washington Senators 7-6 on Bob Johnson's 17th home run in the tenth inning and Detroit nosed out the Chicago White Sox 1-0.

In the National league the Brooklyn Dodgers punished the Phils for Tuesday's setback by taking a 9-3 decision and chopping the lead of the idle St. Louis Cardinals to half a game.

Pittsburgh beat the Cincinnati Reds 8-3 for Paul Derringer's tenth loss of the season, and the Boston Braves and New York Giants divided a doubleheader. Dick Errickson and Tom Earley shared the mound assignment in winning the first game 5-4 and Bill Lohrman retaliated with a 6-0 shutout in the nightcap.

Fritzi Zivic Stops Davis

Bummy Finished In 10th By Welter Champ.

By GAYLE TALBOT

NEW YORK —(AP)— Bummy Davis, the unpopular little waif from Brooklyn, can go back and tell his army buddies in Texas that he put up a courageous fight before he bowed to Fritzie Zivic last night at the Polo Grounds.

* * *

In fact, the ringside regulars were trying to remember any boxer who had absorbed a worse licking in a local ring just before Bummy finally sagged against the ropes in the 10th round and signified that he had taken enough.

* * *

Bummy's face was smeared with blood and he was helpless, his head and body being torn by the machine-gun punches of the welterweight champion, when Referee Arthur Donovan sprang between them and called it off.

* * *

It was agreed that the last one to receive such a terrible beating here was Barney Ross on the night he gave up the welterweight title to Henry Armstrong almost four years ago. Bummy took it almost as well as Barney did, the difference being that Davis did not feel honor bound to stick it out for the distance like Ross.

Zivic did an artistic job on the soldier boy, taking full revenge for the foul shots that Davis poured into his trunks at their first meeting last November. It was so one-sided that the crowd began moving out before the scrap was half over.

All Davis had was a left hook, and he was helpless in the clinches. Zivic, who had waited eight months for another chance at Bummy, had just about everything, including a left jab that was in Bummy's face all night.

A disappointing crowd of 8,968 paid a gross of $36,185.

Has Trouble

ROY WEATHERLY

The Indians, it seems, are having trouble again. Roy Weatherly, star center fielder and leading hitter on the club in 1940, has been suspended indefinitely by Manager Roger Peckinpaugh after an altercation in the clubhouse which followed a $25 fine levied on Weatherly by Peck for not running out two fly balls. The Tribe recently dropped into second place after leading the league for most of the season.

Louis Sued For Divorce

Mrs. Joe Files Action In Chicago Court.

By EARL HILLIGAN

CHICAGO—(AP)— Two weeks after a dinner for which she said "I cooked everything he liked in hopes we'd patch things up," Mrs. Joe Louis has filed suit for divorce from the world's heavyweight boxing champion. She alleged extreme and repeated cruelty.

* * *

In the action, filed yesterday in circuit court, she said the famous brown bomber dealt her "a violent blow in the mouth with his hand" on Jan. 2, 1941, and "hit her in the face and stepped on her ankle," April 19.

"We separated after that last incident," said Mrs. Louis, the former Marva Trotter of Chicago. "But two weeks ago we had dinner together. I fixed everything he likes, but it just didn't work out.

"Joe and I are very friendly, really we are," she said, smiling. "We got along beautifully up to the first of the year. But Joe was just too busy for a family life—or at least he used that as an excuse. I guess his business just wasn't conducive to making a home."

Mrs. Louis, 24, asked restoration of her maiden name and temporary alimony. Informed of the suit, Louis appeared stunned, denied striking his wife, but said he would not contest the action.

He said they had had differences arising over her insistence that she accompany him to training camps and on exhibition tours.

They were married in New York Sept. 24, 1935, the night Joe knocked out Max Baer early in a career in which he won the heavyweight title from Jim Braddock in June 1937, swept through 18 successful title defenses and earned almost $2,000,000.

Pitchers Get One Hitters

(By Associated Press)

Two pitchers — one a veteran with years of big league service on his record and the other a young man with a world of opportunity ahead of him—shared major honors in last night's American Association program.

They were Elon Hogsett, the veteran Minneapolis hurler, and John Grodzicki, youthful pitcher sent to Columbus by the St. Louis Cardinals.

Grodzicki, who hurled a one-hitter for the Cardinals before being farmed out, duplicated that performance against Indianapolis as Columbus pounded out a 10 to 0 victory. For 6⅓ innings Grodzicki pitched hitless ball.

Hogsett also contributed a one-hitter as Minneapolis defeated Kansas City again, this time by a 6 to 0 count. The defeat dropped Kansas City to fourth place, with Louisville moving up to second by defeating Toledo, 7 to 6. and Columbus taking third by its victory over Indianapolis.

St. Paul won its sixth game in seven starts by walloping Milwaukee for the tenth successive time, 12 to 4.

DOUBLE-HEADER ON TAP FOR PLYMOUTH TEAM

The Plymouth Locomotives and the Lucas Merchants will meet in a double-header at Plymouth July Fourth with the first game scheduled to start at 12:30 p. m.

Ralph Stone and Bill Ferrell, with Hank Kyler in the mask, will hurl for the Locomotives. Diehl and Oswalt will pitch for the Merchants with Greulich behind the plate.

Stormy Says He's Disgusted

Peck Makes Suspension Last For Sulk Period.

CLEVELAND —(U.P.)— The Roy Weatherly incident provided the topic for lively discussion today as the Cleveland Indian outfielder attempted to explain his side of his run-in with Manager Roger Peckinpaugh.

Weatherly, reluctant at first to discuss his oral battle with the Tribe's pilot which drew him an indefinite suspension, relented today as the Indians rested for the second straight day.

"I told Peck when he fined me last Sunday that I couldn't see how he could fine me when the whole ball club is playing such lousy ball," Weatherly said.

"Maybe I didn't look like I was hustling, but I thought I was," Weatherly explained.

"I guess Peck thought I was sulking because I wasn't making a lot of noise," the outfielder declared. "He told me that I would have to snap out of it or I'd be in a lot of trouble. I got sore then and we exchanged some hot words."

When asked about his plans for tomorrow's holiday double header with the St. Louis Browns, Weatherly said:

"I don't know whether I'll show up or not. I'm disgusted with the whole situation."

Peckinpaugh disclosed that Weatherly made no attempt to converse with him during the train ride from St. Louis and added "I'm certainly not going to make any move in his direction."

Peckinpaugh said he was ready to reinstate Weatherly when the outfielder convinced him that he was ready to get back in the lineup and hustle.

As the Indians were idle yesterday, the New York Yankees defeated the Boston Red Sox to increase their first-place lead over the Tribe to three full games.

Joe Krakauskas,, who was recalled from Syracuse of the International league, will join the Indians tomorrow. The Indians announced today that they had shipped Cal Dorsett, rookie right hander, to the Nashville Southern association club to make room for Krakauskas.

Co-ed Golfers Repeat Set

1942 Tourney Scheduled For Ohio State.

By FRITZ HOWELL

COLUMBUS—(AP)—The women's intercollegiate golf championship, the first of which winds up today over Ohio State university's course, will be an annual fixture on the country's big-time links calendar.

* * *

Dr. Gladys Palmer, chairman of the women's division of the Buckeye school's physical education department, said the 1942 tournament would start June 22 over the same layout, and that she expected a field three times as large as the 35 girls attracted by the inaugural.

* * *

She also announced that the co-eds would battle annually for the "Patty Berg" trophy, to be donated by the red-haired, freckled Minneapolis professional.

Miss Berg, who was to referee today's finals between Eleanor Dudley, Alabama co-ed from Chicago, and Eddell Wortz, Stephens college junior from Fort Smith, Ark., offered high praise of the intercollegiate.

Miss Palmer, who said there had been some opposition to the founding of the tournament because some universities did not approve of competition for girls, declared:

"The tournament has been a huge success, we feel. It should and will be, continued. It fills a decided need, and next year we will organize a women's national intercollegiate golf association, with student officers, patterned after that of the men's intercollegiate."

* * *

Miss Wortz won her way into today's finals with a 3 and 2 victory over Marjorie Row, the tourney medalist from Michigan State, while Miss Dudley took a 3 to 1 decision over Frances Ann McCanna of Rockford, Ill., student at St. Mary of the Woods, Terre Haute, Ind.

PITTSBURGH—Jimmy Bivins, 176, Cleveland, outpointed Curtis Sheppard, 174, Pittsburgh, (10).

PATERSON, N. J.—Patrick Edward Comiskey, 212, Paterson, stopped Italo Colonello, 195, New York (5).

Defeat Tiffin Twice For Runner-Up Spot

Byers, Wolpert and Ankrum Clout Home Runs in Opening Fracas

MANSFIELD BRAVES finished the first-half season in second place in the Ohio State league last night by taking both ends of a doubleheader at Tiffin and sweeping the three-game series with the Hens.

Freddy Wolpert hurled the Tribe to a 6 to 5 victory in the opener and Patterson set the Hens down 4 to 2 in the afterpiece.

Chuck Byers, playing right field for the Braves in the first game, joined Wolpert and Bobby Ankrum in a slugging contest, each hitting for the circuit, while Wolpert and Eddie Mutryn connected for doubles. Mutryn also got a double in the second game.

Chuck Gerlach clouted a home run in each game for the Brood, and Manager Taylor connected for the round trip in the second tilt.

Skipper Clowson was ejected from the first game in the eighth inning by Umpire Haug for arguing over a decision, but returned to his centerfield post in the nightcap.

The Braves have an open date today and go to Lima on July 4th to open the second half season.

Mansfield got away to a three-run lead in the fourth frame of the opener last night. Moore singled and was forced by Clowson. Byers hit a home run, driving in two markers. After Wolpert had grounded out, Ankrum was safe on Kenny King's two-base error and stole third and scored when Amidie bobbled Reinka's roller.

Tiffin tied the score with three in the fifth, the Braves added a marker in the sixth, but the Hens took the lead with two in the seventh. Then came the Braves with a two-run game-winning rally in the eighth, and the two teams were tied for second place.

Mansfield took second place honors with the nightcap victory, starting off with one run in the first inning when Ankrum walked, Reinks bunted safely and Mangan also was safe on a bunt, scoring Ankrum.

* * *

The Hens got their two runs in the third on homers by Gerlach and Taylor, but the Braves came back with three in the sixth. Mutryn doubled. Siegbert fanned and Moore grounded out. Mutryn scored on a wild pitch by Manager Taylor. Clowson strolled, Wolpert and Patterson singled, scoring Clowson, and Wolpert tallied when the catcher threw wild into left field.

The Secret of the Marshbanks + + +

By Kathleen Norris

(Copyright, 1941)

CHAPTER XXX

"Said she didn't know what she'd been saying. She and Mr. Coates had a long talk about it yesterday."

"Oh, my God. I thank thee!" Cherry said, in her soul. Her breakfast had come; she fell upon it ravenously.

* * *

Cherry finished her coffee and the tray was taken away. She lay lazily looking about, going from a half sleep into a real sleep and waking much later to see Kelly sitting watching her.

At the sight of his dear, familiar face with a look of concern upon it, she had good reason to appreciate how weak she still was, for her lips trembled and tears brimmed her eyes.

"Feeling all right?" he asked. "May tells me you had some breakfast. Good girl."

"It's so good to see you!" she said with a little effort. "Don't—don't go away. It's all been such a nightmare, and I'm just awake!"

"A nightmare?" he said. "You are the Marshbanks heiress. Your Grandfather Wellington left you a pot of money."

"That was really true then?"

"That was really true. Your father, Frederick Marshbanks, left an unequivocal statement. And old Judge Comstock, the one who died, also left a paper confirming it. It sounds too fantastic to be true, Cherry, but there seems to be no question. Your father believed you were dying; his wife had taken the other child to her heart, and as time went by I suppose it grew harder and harder to think of undoing it all."

"How does Amy take it, Kelly?"

"Very badly, of course. Nothing in Amy's life has prepared her to step down; she's always been proud of being a Marshbanks, descended from the aristocratic Wellingtons. And then, of course," Kelly went on with a slight grimance, "There's Gogo."

"What's he doing?"

"He's keeping very mum. But he looks years older."

"What will Amy have, Kelly? What money will she have!"

"What would have been enough and more than enough for you and me, Marchioness."

The name brought back her color and her smile.

"Not the Porter money. But she'll have some of the money her mother left long ago. And the legacy the judge left, supposedly to you. She is you, now. And what her grandmother can leave her. Plenty. Plenty, if she hadn't brought Gogo in. Poor little thing; it makes me sick to see how apologetic and pleading she is with Gogo. She watches every mood of his, picks up very word!"

Cherry's eyes dilated with a reluctant thought.

"You don't think he loves her, Kelly?"

"I think he loved her rich, as much as a man of that type can love a little, spoiled, undeveloped child like Amy."

"But, Kelly," she asked anxiously, "what's going to happen to Amy?"

"Amy'll have to work it out as thousands of women who marry in haste have worked it out," Kelly answered philosophically. "She'll have her title, and she'll have various experiences going about with him to places they can't afford, Palm Beach or Hollywood—places where titles matter. She'll sell what securities she can to pay his debts and supply him with money for roulette and race tracks, and after a while she'll get a divorce. That's the way it usually works out with any such marriage, and with Amy it'll only be a little bit quicker than usual."

Cherry's eyes were far away; she spoke thoughtfully: "Kelly, have I quite a lot of money?"

"You have indeed, Marchioness. Under a capitalistic system you have done well. I don't know how much. It'll take weeks to get things straightened out."

Kelly watched for a moment the pale cheeks and dropped eyelashes, and then telling her not to worry about anything, he went quietly out.

Dozing and waking, and sometimes seeing May quietly busy in the room, and once seeing Kelly's silhouette against the window, Cherry let the day slip by in utter rest and peace. But she was wide awake, and feeling more like herself every minute when at dusk the door opened softly, and Amy looked in.

"Oh, I wanted to see you, Amy!"

The girl came in with a perfunctory smile, a perfunctory question about Cherry's health. She went at once to a chair at the window and balanced herself on its wide arm.

"You don't have to worry about us in the least, you know, Cherry," she said ungraciously to Cherry's first suggestion; "Gogo and I have talked it over and decided . . ."

"Amy, I wish you'd come over here where I can see you."

"As for taking any of your money," Amy pursued, not changing her position, "that's ridiculous! There's no reason why you should offer it and there's no reason why I should take it."

"I've been thinking out a plan, Amy, and I know you'll like it if you'll only listen."

"I know you want to be very charitable and all that, Cherry, and it's very nice of you. But it simply can't be done."

"But please come over here and sit by the bed. Amy, where'd you get that dress?" Cherry added the question, knowing it to be a sure way of reaching a more natural Amy. It had its instant effect.

"Magnin's," Amy said. "But it's too wide here." She gathered it tightly against her slender little waist on either side as she walked slowly to the bed. "I feel so horrible about all this," she said, sitting down and trying to smile at Cherry through suddenly filled eyes. "It's not your fault; I know that."

This, for Amy, was real generosity. Cherry began to feel hopeful.

"I'm not talking of giving you back your money, Amy," Cherry said. "But I want you to let me at least pay off those debts and promises that Gogo made when he thought he was going to have it."

"He never asked me for money!" Amy stated lifelessly.

"I know he didn't. But it's there, enough at least to get him into the clear. And for the rest, Amy, why do we have to let anyone know that we ever changed names? Why not just let that part go? You're married now; your name is different. And Kelly and I . . ."

Amy's tear-swollen eyes brightened into a half interest. "I knew you were crazy about Kelly," she said somberly.

"I only mean this, Amy. Take some of it. I don't want it or need it! Pay off these bills, and then me send you an allowance."

"You're very kind, Cherry," Amy broke in decisively, "but I couldn't. It wouldn't solve anything. I know you mean well..."

"Now listen," Cherry interrupted in her turn. "Don't be so silly. Suppose you went to Gogo now and said that while things never would be as they were, you could clear up his debts, send his brothers the money he promised them and then go live somewhere simply—not gambling, you know or playing polo—but the way thousands of people do, and have a good time too. Please, Amy! Kelly says Gogo's all upset."

"Cherry," Amy said in a whisper, suddenly breaking, "if only I hadn't married him! Oh, I don't mean," she added quickly, "that he doesn't love me! He does. But—but if I had only known how things were, and then he had asked me to run away with him, I'd feel so much more sure! As it is now I keep apologizing; I keep trying to think up ways to make it up to him. But you don't know—you don't know," she went on tragically, "how fast Gogo spends money! He'll lose two or three thousand in one race, or one evening at roulette! Once he lost twenty-seven thousand in one night."

THEATERS

Mystery Thriller.

Replete with assorted murders, a large order of sinister suspects and a haunted house, "The Black Cat," mystery thriller, will be shown Friday only at the Ohio. An imposing array of chill and comedy experts have been assembled for the cast including Basil Rathbone, Hugh Herbert, Brod Crawford, Bela Lugosi and Gale Sondergaard. Action of the picture takes place in the lonely country home of an eccentric old woman, played by Cecelia Loftus. Stanley Cortez, noted Hollywood cinematographer, is said to have devised many novel and fantastic effects to amplify the eerie sequences in the story.

Sky Spectacle.

Richard Arlen wears the same helmet and jacket in "Power Dive," air thriller showing at the Madison, that he did in "Wings," the production that elevated him to stardom several years ago. Arlen doesn't use a double in the production because he knows how to fly. He has over 400 hours in the air to his credit, owns and operates an aviation school, and has a fleet of 14 planes in his flying service. Jane Withers is starred in the co-attraction, "A Very Young Lady."

Henry Aldrich.

Adapted from the Broadway play by the same name, "Life With Father," showing Friday at the Ritz revolves around the misadventures of Henry Aldrich. As a high school youth trying to promote a trip to Alaska Henry is confronted with the task of raising $100 for the trip and he gets into all kinds of difficulties doing it. Jackie Cooper is cast as "Henry," and the supporting players include Leila Ernst, Kay Stewart and Hedda Hopper. The Robin Hood theme is reproduced in a modern setting in "The Phantom Cowboy," the second attraction with Don "Red" Barry.

Absorbing Drama.

"Adam Had Four Sons," current production at the Park, provides a panorama of life in an American family composed of a patient understanding father and four devil-may-care sons. The efforts of two women, one an understanding governness, and the other, a reckless daughter of Eve, to gain control of the family provides an absorbing drama. Warner Baxter is cast as the father, Ingrid Bergman plays the governess and Susan Hayward, the other woman. "Robin Hood of the Pecos," is the companion picture.

Whacky Musical.

Presenting the kind of whacky entertainment that made "Buck Privates," a laugh-getter, "San Antonio Rose," opening at the Majestic Friday features a maximum of laughs musical and dance numbers with a minimum of plot. The Merry Macs, Eve Arden, Lon Chaney, jr., and Shemp Howard, the late Ted Healy's first stooge, headline the cast. Bill Elliott, hard-riding son of the saddle, appears in "Hands Across the Rockies," the second picture. In this film he rides to the rescue of a young woman, sole witness to a killing, who is being forced by her family to marry the murderer.

DORSETT RELEASED

CLEVELAND —(INS)— Cal Dorsett, young right-hander, today was on his way under option to Nashville of the Southern Association to make room on the Indian mound staff for Joe Krakauskas, southpaw who was recalled from Syracuse in an effort to bolster the Tribe's wavering pitching corps.

PAM—Reward Enough! By A. W. Brewerton

OH, I FEEL QUITE ALL RIGHT NOW! I WANT TO HURRY HOME AND BREAK THE WONDERFUL NEWS TO MY PRECIOUS, BRAVE LITTLE MOTHER!
HEAVEN WILL REWARD YOU, I CANNOT, BUT MAYBE SOME DAY--
YOU'VE ALREADY REWARDED ME! SEEING YOU SO HAPPY AGAIN, AND THE CHANCE IT GIVES YOUR MOTHER — THAT'S ALL THE REWARD I WANT!
AND IN HIS OFFICE THE GOOD OLD COLONEL MUSES:-
THAT POOR GIRL! PAMELA WAS CERTAINLY ONE HUNDRED PER CENT RIGHT WHEN SHE FIGURED A NEEDY PERSON LOST THAT MONEY!
A SICK MOTHER WHO MUST BE TAKEN AWAY — AND THE GIRL HERSELF LOCKED HALF STARVED! AND — SOMEHOW — SOMETHING ABOUT THAT GIRL —?

MANY LEADERS FAIL TO HOLD MARKET RALLY

Short Covering For Holiday Serves as Sustaining Influence on Mart.

NEW YORK —(AP)— Fractional gainers had a shade the best of it in today's stock market although many leaders failed to extend the mild rally of the previous session. Dealings, moderately lively at the start, slowed later. A few aircrafts, coppers and rails clung to plus signs near the second hour.

A little short covering by those who wanted to be on the safe side over the holiday, brokers said, was a sustaining influence. All major markets will be closed tomorrow. Scant inspiration was found in the war news which again centered mainly on conflicting German-Russian claims.

Among cheerful items scanned by boardrooms were:

The country's bank clearings for the week ended Wednesday, as summarized by Dun & Bradstreet, topped the comparable period a year ago by 16.1 per cent and were above the $7-billion mark for the fifth time in 1941.

The American Telephone and Telegraph company reported telephones in use in the United States as of July 1 were at a record peak, numbering 18,155,300. New installations of 67,300 in June also was the biggest upturn for the this month in the concern's history.
